

NDP Pushing Mainland Link

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

It will take a hard link with the mainland to bring the people of Vancouver Island into the main stream of events in British Columbia. Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said Wednesday.

Until a bridge-causeway or tunnel link is built — perhaps at a cost of more than $200,000,000 — Island residents will continue at a severe economic disadvantage, raged as they are with a "tariff wall," he said.

Ferry services offer only an "incomplete answer," Mr. Strachan said. "Right now Vancouver Island has a tariff wall around it because you have to pay a fee to get goods or people off and onto the island.

"As long as this exists, Vancouver Island will never compete for development on equal terms with the rest of British Columbia."

He was asked at a press conference here whether he supported the plan in the platform of T. C. Douglas, who is seeking re-election in Nanaimo-Cowichan — The Islands when a federal bye-election is held there, calling for a federal study of a causeway to the mainland.

"Mr. Douglas is trying to make Vancouver Island a part of Canada," replied Mr. Strachan. "Construction of a toll-free link with the mainland would allow the people of the island to participate in the mainstream of events in B.C."

Mr. Strachan, who lives near Nanaimo, said people who live on the island now cannot travel conveniently to Vancouver to attend an opera, play or ballet, and youngsters cannot participate fully in sports activities.

Mr. Douglas was only asking that Ottawa show the same consideration to B.C. as it had to other parts of Canada, Mr. Strachan said.

He noted that the federal government had already built the Canso Causeway connecting Cape Breton Island to Nova Scotia.

There has already been a feasibility study of the link between the mainland and Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Strachan said it was one of the terms of B.C.'s entry into Confederation in 1871 that Vancouver Island would be linked to the mainland, and in 1873 Prime Minister Sir John A. Macdonald had an order-in-council approved which designated Victoria the terminus of the railway to the Pacific.

The promise was never kept, Mr. Strachan added, and now was the time to get the federal government to carry out a proper feasibility study.

Air-Canada Drama

Talk Scrubs Hijack Try

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian authorities interrogated a six-foot Texan Wednesday night following his attempt to hijack an Air Canada Viscount aircraft and ordering the pilot at gunpoint to fly to Cuba.

The man, who identified himself as Charles Lavern Beasley, 22, of Dallas, was held for questioning after being convinced by RCMP and Air Canada officials he would be better off remaining in Canada than going to Cuba.

In Dallas, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said they sought a man named Beasley in connection with the Aug. 19 robbery of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank at Ladonia, Tex.

FBI WARRANT

The FBI said they have a warrant for the arrest of a man named Beasley who was born in Rosser, Tex. on April 2, 1946 — the same date and birth place given by the man in custody in Montreal.

Assistant Commissioner Raoul Carriere of the RCMP said Beasley agreed to surrender his weapon after about 15 or 20 minutes of persuasion which included a promise from Justice Minister John Turner that he would be assured of political asylum in Canada.

TORONTO-BOUND

Beasley was reported to have burst into the flight deck, a 22-calibre revolver in hand, shortly after the aircraft took off from Saint John, N.B., on a flight to Toronto.

"With a stewardess in front of him, the gunman told the pilot: 'We're flying to Cuba.'"

POLICE LATER

Initial questioning was conducted exclusively by immigration authorities at Montreal International Airport, where the plane made an unscheduled stop, but Air Canada and suburban Dorval police joined in the interrogation later Wednesday.

It was learned that Beasley — Carriere said RCMP had to take his word that that was his name — told immigration officials he was a member of the Black Power movement in the United States and that the Central Intelligence Agency was after him.

When the RCMP assistant commissioner arrived at the scene, the aircraft was ready to take off for Cuba after it dis-

Ministerial Kudos For Crew

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Paul Hellyer Wednesday congratulated the crew of a hijacked Air Canada Viscount for the way they handled "an extremely difficult situation."

In a statement, Hellyer paid tribute to Capt. Ronald Hollett, First Officer Robert Bromley and stewardesses Beverly Atkinson and Christine Wand who were aboard the airliner forced by a gunman to land at Montreal.

Fund Vote Dies

Three resolutions linked to housing costs approved. Page 4.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two resolutions that sparked debate criticizing union leadership were introduced Wednesday at the western Canadian convention of the International Woodworkers of America.

One dealt with the union's strike fund — a major issue at the convention — and the other charged that woodworkers were being forced to contribute toward the re-election campaign of regional president Jack Moore and his officers.

LONG DEBATE

The strike fund resolution, which received approval after a long debate on procedural matters, called for a special convention to be held not later than Jan. 31, 1969, to deal with the fund's regulations and assessments.

Many of the 200 delegates wanted the strike fund to be dealt with at this convention.

THE GOLDBERG POLICY

Russia

In his third article of a series outlining a new foreign policy for the U.S., Arthur Goldberg sketches a program for dealing with the Soviet Union following the invasion of Czechoslovakia. His main points:

● Avoid the danger of a military confrontation.

● Diminish the economic burden imposed by an escalating arms race and the costs of sophisticated weaponry.

● Justifiable indignation against Moscow must not obscure the fact that the West's security will be served by approval of the non-proliferation treaty.

'Distasteful, Secret Agents' Trudeau's Angry Outburst

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday accused France of sending "secret agents" to Canada in an "underhanded and surreptitious way" to agitate among French-language minorities.

Friend Asked Him

ST. PIERRE, Man. (CP) — French official Philippe Rossillon was making a personal visit "as a friend" when he spent five days in this French-Canadian community three weeks ago, his host said Wednesday.

Pharmacist Rene Mulaire said he met him in France and "invited him to visit us because he is very knowledgeable" about the problems faced by minority groups.

A Manitoba government statement said Rossillon was called to the office of Derek Bedson, clerk of the executive council.

Bedson told him that his visit could not be construed as unofficial and that he should in fact have approached the government.

Early October Talks Rusk's NATO Idea

Colonist-London Telegraph Service

BONN, West Germany. — U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk has suggested that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers meet in New York in early October to discuss the implications of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, informed sources here say.

Rusk's "sounding" message went to all NATO members.

Gun in Neck Interrupts Cocktail Time

TORONTO (CP) — Stewardess Christine Waud was mixing drinks in the galley of Air Canada flight 303 from Moncton and Saint John, N.B., Wednesday when a man poked a gun against her neck and said: "There's going to be a few changes around here."

Mrs. Waud said she spun around and the man told her: "We're not going to Toronto — we're going to Cuba."

Then he pressed the gun to the neck of the flight's other stewardess, Beverly Atkinson, grabbed her left arm and marched her toward the cabin.

"He was very, very nervous," Miss Atkinson said. "His eyes were kind of rolling around a little bit. But I'm sure he hadn't been drinking."

Mrs. Waud, 24, and Miss Atkinson, 26, were interviewed

when they arrived here from Montreal where the Toronto-bound flight stopped for refueling.

Mrs. Waud, whose husband works in the Air Canada freight department here, said the passengers remained calm throughout the attempted hijacking.

"Everyone was laughing and joking," said the Air Canada stewardess of 3 1/2 years.

"He just said that he wanted to go to Cuba," Miss Atkinson said. "He didn't care. If we had to stop every 10 minutes to get there."

Miss Atkinson said the man later ordered her out of the cabin and she returned only to take food to the pilots.

Some of the passengers were also interviewed when they arrived here on an earlier flight.

charged the other 17 passengers and refused.

Beasley indicated only one man would be allowed to re-enters the aircraft and this procedure was followed by airport authorities.

The police officer said Beasley finally agreed to turn over his gun to the pilot. The assistant commissioner, accompanied by S. Sgt. Leo Liberton of the RCMP, then proceeded to the aircraft where the pilot handed the revolver over to the RCMP.

CURLY HAIR

Liberton, who took the loaded revolver from the pilot, described Beasley as a six-foot, 185-pound Negro with short curly hair.

Despite the promise of political asylum, Beasley's action has left him subject to a number of charges, among them the kidnapping of the turbo-prop aircraft crew.

Carriere said Beasley had asked for the Cuban consul-general in Montreal but the Cuban official said he did not wish to come to the airport to interview Beasley because the gunman was not a Cuban citizen.

AIR CANADA FIRST

The hijacking was the first in Air Canada's 31-year history. Carriere told reporters at the airport he cannot say whether any charges will be laid. The case was strictly in the hands of immigration authorities.

The assistant commissioner said he had spent 15 or 20 minutes talking with Beasley on the Viscount's radio, trying to persuade the hijacker who was holding the crew at gunpoint to surrender.

ASYLUM PROMISED

Asked about a statement by the hijacker that he is wanted by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, the assistant commissioner said the RCMP is not aware of this.

The gunman, who booked the flight in Halifax under the name of Garvey, boarded the Viscount in Saint John, N.B., and drew his 12-shot Colt shortly after takeoff for Toronto.

His forced stewardess Beverly Atkinson of Vancouver ahead of him to the flight deck and demanded to be flown to Cuba.

The pilot and first officer Robert Bromley of Ottawa, convinced the hijacker they would have to land at Montreal and refused. He allowed the 17 passengers and two stewardesses to leave, but held the captain and first officer at gunpoint while the Viscount was refueled and a flight plan to Cuba was prepared.

AT WINDSOR

Robert Lefebvre, inspector in charge of the Canadian immigration office at the airport, said the hijacker will be held in immigration cells in Montreal until the department's investigation is completed.

He said Beasley told questioners he had entered Canada at Windsor, Ont., and had $175 in Canadian funds on his person when he surrendered.

Following the investigation, Beasley would be turned over to police in a suburban Dorval, where the airport is situated, and Dorval police would decide whether to lay charges.

Police Chief A. R. Noel of Dorval told reporters later there is a possibility that kidnapping charges will be laid once Beasley is released.

LITTLE FUS

The hijacking of Air Canada flight 303 caused so little commotion that many passengers were unaware anything unusual had happened until the plane was near Montreal.

Capt. Hollett told passengers calmly over the intercom that the Viscount would be making an unscheduled landing at Montreal "because we have a special passenger to take somewhere else."

Even the passengers who had seen the gunman grab Miss Atkinson remained calm.

Gun Interrupts Cocktails

Ont., who had been holidaying in Moncton, said:

"When I saw the gun I wanted to scream but I realized the hijacker might go mad and shoot. I think other passengers must have figured the same because the cabin was very quiet."

"I saw him hold the gun at the stewardess's neck and march her up to the cockpit. They left the door open and I could see him standing there with the gun in his hand."

It was the first airplane flight for Julie's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Peterson of Moncton.

He said that when he saw the man walking toward the

They said the union could not afford to wait until next year to start rebuilding the fund.

Earlier, the convention was told that the fund has dwindled to a little more than $1,000,000 from $4,000,000 because of a 14-month strike in the interior of British Columbia.

Several members suggested a fund of $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 would be needed as "a war chest" to back up union demands when both interior and coast locals bargain jointly in 1970.

Earl Foxcroft of Port Alberni proposed an immediate $10 assessment.

ACTION FOUGHT

But other members fought off immediate action. They said the fund could become a political issue if a referendum on assessments were held among members at the same time they were casting ballots for regional officers.

"We must not confuse the ballots of the strike fund with those of the regional officers," said Ernie Freer, president of the loggers' local, a backer of Mr. Moore's leadership rival Syd Thompson, president of the large Vancouver local.

PAPER BARR

Mr. Freer also hurled another barb at the current slate when he introduced a motion that said the IWA newspaper was being used as a campaign instrument "by certain regional officers."

The motion said woodworkers were forced to contribute to the current slate's campaign through a per-capita tax that is used to publish the newspaper, which has promoted Mr. Moore and his officers.

Russians Plan Prague Project

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced it would build a subway system for the Czechoslovak capital of Prague, currently occupied by Soviet troops. An announcement by the Soviet news agency Tass said a 4½-mile subway line will be built with Soviet equipment. It added further extensions to Prague's first subway would eventually "exceed 37 miles."

'Distasteful, Secret Agents'

or "agents of a foreign state" agitating among them.

This could cause a backlash among English-speaking Canadians.

Trudeau said he has launched an inquiry to find out exactly what Rossillon was doing in Manitoba.

Manitoba Premier Walter Weir saw Trudeau here Monday.

MATTER DISCUSSED

Although Trudeau did not elaborate on his investigation, it was learned later that Marcel Cadieux, Canada's under-secretary of state for external affairs, discussed the matter here with Pierre Straud, newly-appointed French ambassador to Canada.

At another point, the prime minister said he feels that the French government has been so shaken by recent events that perhaps it has not yet recovered its logic.

BASIC POLICY

It seemed basic French foreign policy was to respect national sovereignty.

"If that is the basis, why does France attempt to intervene in other sovereignities?" Trudeau demanded.

President de Gaulle had indicated he finds a federal system of government unsatisfactory, though France as a unitary state had run into difficulties drafting "several" constitutions.

Trudeau said he thinks federalism "is the way of the future."

BILL VITAL

The prime minister also said that the language-of-instruction problem in schools in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard shows that a bill of rights embedded in the constitution is "even more necessary."

He said he is "dismayed" at the "retrograde step" of one group trying to impose a language on another group. (See Page 2.)

The prime minister had these other comments:

● The government will spend $2,000,000 "for a start" to help bring at least 1,000 Czechoslovakian refugees to Canada.

● The government's main attack on poverty will be through a big increase in productivity.

● Federal and provincial offi-

● He hopes there will be reforms in the Citizenship Act so that native-born and immigrant Canadians will have equal status.

● The management of Lakehead grain elevators had been "unwise" to go to the press instead of the negotiating table with a new wage offer. He was less optimistic about the grain handlers' strike that he had been about other stoppages this year.

● The cabinet is still trying to define "precise guidelines" for the avoidance of any conflict of interest between MPs, especially cabinet ministers, and their holding shares in companies doing business with the government.

Proper Protein Consumption Prevents Low-Sugar Attack

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I've always had a weight problem, not in the number of pounds particularly, but the distribution. I'm about five-foot-three, weigh about 115, but have always carried too much weight on my hips and thighs, so I try not to gain.

Every time I eat pancakes with syrup (no butter) for breakfast, I perspire, tremble, and have to lie flat — and I eat something with protein.

This is what is strange: pancakes and syrup contain energy nutrients, don't they? If I have a sweet roll for breakfast, I never have these symptoms. — D. E. J.

It may seem odd to you, but I have had others tell me exactly the same thing. Yes, pancakes and syrup contain energy nutrients — the pancakes are carbohydrate — and the syrup straight sugar. Such combination can stimulate the production of insulin by your pancreas. This uses up the ready supply of blood sugar in your blood, stream, bringing on a period of low blood sugar. That would explain the symptoms.

Your Good Health

A sweet roll, although carbohydrate, might not be sufficient to provoke this response by the pancreas.

Anyway, that is an illustration of why I (and other physicians) stress the importance of protein in preventing attacks of low blood sugar. First, protein does not incite the same response by the pancreas. Second, protein is converted very slowly into the blood sugar, so in that way a steady supply is provided. Instead of having a sudden rush of it, followed by a rapid decline. The absolute level of blood sugar is not as important.

It would seem, as an abrupt and rapid decline.

Thus a moderate amount of protein — say an egg and a strip or two of bacon for breakfast — is an excellent safeguard against attacks of low blood sugar, or hypoglycemia.

To make sure, you might have the swing of your blood sugar determined by a six-hour sugar tolerance test. If my interpretation of your "pancake symptoms" is correct, and you have a tendency to periods of low blood sugar, your test should show low blood sugar after the fourth hour.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the reason for not having sexual relations until six weeks after childbirth? — A.R.

It takes about six weeks for the uterus to return to normal after childbirth. Danger of infection is the chief reason for abstinence during the interval. (So most doctors set six weeks as the time for a post-partum checkup.)

Hanoi Given Death Threat

PARIS (AP) — The United States has told North Vietnam that "further defeat, destruction and death" faces the Communist command if it tries for total victory in South Vietnam.

At the end of a 2½-hour session Wednesday, the two sides at the peace talks here appeared as far apart as when they first sat down May 13. It was their 21st meeting.

"In battle after battle, the Republic of (South) Vietnam and its allies have thrown back and inflicted crushing defeats upon North Vietnamese and Viet Cong (guerrilla) troops," U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman declared.

'Old Records'

Replied North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy: "As a result of the victories won by the People's Liberation Armed Forces, the U.S. aggressors are being driven deeper into a passive defensive position, and are finding themselves in an embarrassed situation regarding both strategy and tactics."

Spokesmen for both negotiators said there had been no progress.

"Mr. Harriman once again played his old records," Nguyen Thanh Le, spokesman for the North Vietnamese, told correspondents.

Short Speech

If the meeting was the shortest on record, it was because "Xuan Thuy made his shortest speech to date," U.S. spokesman William Jorden said.

Just when the talks can move into the substantial issues behind the war, "I will not venture to predict," Jorden added.

This was in answer to a question concerning a statement by Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, Democratic candidate for the U.S. presidency, predicting that "substantial negotiations" would get under way before the next U.S. president is inaugurated in January.

Halting Clause

The North Vietnamese stated again that the talks cannot progress until the U.S. halts its bombing and other acts of war against North Vietnam.

They also repeated his government's rejection of the American demand that Hanoi must reply with "military restraint" in return for a bombing halt.

"Only yesterday did President Johnson again declare that there would be no complete cessation of the bombings of North Vietnam unless there was a reciprocity," Thuy said. "We reaffirm that there can be no reciprocity whatsoever."

SARIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese paratroops and marines swept through Tay Ninh early today and routed Communist troops out of at least three quarters of the city of 200,000 residents, U.S. sources said.

The informants added, however, that the Communists may have left behind snipers, terrorists and assassination squads to keep the key provincial capital in turmoil.

About 2,000 South Vietnamese reinforcements joined in the massive sweep of the northern perimeter and the southeast sector of Tay Ninh, which is situated along the major infiltration route leading to Saigon.

Allied Chiefs

Before the Communists broke out under cover of darkness, Southern allied commanders said it appeared to be the fiercest fight since the Communist command's second-wave offensive last May.

A prisoner taken in early fighting said a full division of about 7,500 men had emerged from secret bases inside Cambodia and was in the general Tay Ninh area.

Tay Ninh lies 45 miles northwest of Saigon and only 14 miles from the Cambodian border.

Stiff Battles

Government militiamen fought several stiff battles in and around the city earlier Wednesday before the 2,000 South Vietnamese paratroops, marines and rangers were rushed in by helicopters and road convoys. Supporting elements of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division have moved around the southern and western outskirts of Tay Ninh, and other allied units are on alert to move in if necessary.

Air Strikes

U.S. B-52 bombers flew repeated strikes over the jungles around Tay Ninh City.

The militiamen defending Tay Ninh offered hardly any resistance and the Communists had almost free movement in the city Wednesday morning. But the Communists did not follow up with any large scale attack, and most of the city's administrative and military headquarters remained under anti-Communist control until reinforcements arrived.

Fear Stalks Europe

THERE IS UNMISTAKABLE EVIDENCE that Yugoslavia recognizes a danger of the use of force against her by the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact allies which invaded Czechoslovakia.

Moscow has made it clear that it regards the Yugoslavs as the source of the "liberal infection" which in recent years has spread to Czechoslovakia and Romania, and which very likely has encouraged intellectuals in other Soviet bloc states to dream of reform and relaxation of the old Stalinist rules.

The anger of the Russian press against Marshal Josip Tito has never been more furious since the Yugoslav strong man broke with Moscow 20 years ago. And the press inevitably reflects the thinking in the Kremlin.

In consequence Marshal Tito has openly prepared to meet any aggression from the estimated 50 Russian, Bulgarian and Hungarian divisions on unfriendly frontiers. Whether his strength is adequate to deter a military adventure may be in doubt. But he is certainly committed to resistance.

For this threatening situation the Soviet Union's violent reaction to the Czechoslovak liberalization movement is alone to blame.

It is responsible, moreover, for the reassessment by the North Atlantic Treaty powers of the Middle European situation and the feeling among their commanders which must be defined as something more than uneasiness. Before the invasion there were 20 Russian divisions facing West Germany and the NATO allies, with two more in Poland and four in Hungary. Now there are about 35, including 15 in Czechoslovakia deployed near the Bavarian frontier.

Together with their Warsaw Pact allies, the Soviets now can muster forces immediately available in the area to outnumber by three-to-one the 26 NATO divisions in Europe.

These and other logistical changes have virtually eliminated any possibility of warning of an impending move against West Germany. It is this threatening development which now engenders the NATO planners.

According to one usually well-informed observer at NATO headquarters in Brussels, Mr. Andrew Wilson, of The London Observer, there is a tendency to threaten use of a tactical nuclear deterrent.

To what a sad and squalid level we have descended when nuclear arms rather than reasonable intercourse and mutual trust must become the method of persuasion!

And yet, if the Russian intentions are pacific, why the need for the massive military build-up? And what else could be expected from NATO officers than suspicion and fear?

It is a dangerous time for threats from either side, and pride should not prevent continued efforts towards a detente by which the tensions might be eased. Surely no sane government dare contemplate the fearful alternative to compromise.

Where They Count

CANADIANS will not be the only people in the Western world to applaud Prime Minister Trudeau's quick return to President de Gaulle's latest superficial summation of international affairs.

In his most insulting mood Monday the French leader named Biafra and Quebec as two outstanding examples of the weaknesses inherent in federated states in which there exists compulsory association of people who are different.

Mr. Trudeau bitingly replied that General de Gaulle did not appear to be "overly impressed with reality" and added for good measure the thought that if the general was ready to support Quebec under the same conditions that he is willing to support Biafra, then Quebec wouldn't want it.

Though it is extremely unlikely that these remarks will make any impression at all on the French president, Mr. Trudeau's words have been heard loud and clear throughout the length and breadth of Canada — and this is where they count most.

Poverty's Challenge

THE FIFTH ANNUAL report of the Economic Council of Canada, as it concerns the poor, has been described as a challenge to the Trudeau government. When the policies enunciated by the prime minister and his party in the election campaign are re-examined, the word challenge takes on additional meaning.

The report sees as a national disgrace the number of Canadians living in poverty. By the council's estimate, there are at least 4,750,000 of them.

It calls for a massive attack, a war on poverty, beginning with the co-ordination and exploitation to the limit of existing programs and extending to complete evaluation and re-appraisal of all government and private policies concerning poverty. It says a minimum standard of living should be defined, and suggests serious and thorough study of a minimum income guarantee in one form or another.

The report says, and this is one of its more important points, that poverty is not just a regional problem; that "a set of anti-poverty policies directed towards major groups or geographical areas showing a very high incidence of low incomes would almost certainly fail to deal adequately with poverty. It would, for example, have a tendency to neglect unduly the very considerable group whose poverty problems are associated not with an absence of earnings, but with an insufficiency of earnings. It would tend to miss the many pockets of poverty that are scattered through relatively high-income regions—pockets which, in the aggregate, account for a large proportion of total poverty in Canada."

The Liberal platform in this year's federal election offered no new social welfare programs, although it did propose streamlining of existing plans and the aiming of "new initiatives at selective forms of assistance, designed to fill in the gaps in our social services and to stimulate self-improvement for the economically deprived."

Beyond this, however, there was no indication of a continuation of the war on poverty initiated by the Pearson government. And in fact, Mr. Trudeau made his position amply clear when he was campaigning in Ontario. The Liberal Party was not interested, he said, in promising great expenditures that would result in tax increases; any promises made would be for the benefit of poor regions where per capita income was one-half to two-thirds of the national average.

A pertinent fact cited by the Economic Council of Canada is that 83 per cent of low-income, non-farm families in 1961 lived elsewhere than in the Atlantic provinces, and 53 per cent of them lived in Ontario and the western provinces.

Washington Calling

In the Eye of the Enforcement Storm

By MARQUIS CHILDS

QUIET-mannered, soft-spoken, with only a trace of his Texas origins, that man should be one of the targets on whom apostles of "law and order" rain hail and brimstone.

In a measure of how deep are the troubles of a troubled time, U.S. Attorney-General Ramsey Clark has become a symbol for the whole spectrum from the radicals who follow George Wallace to the champions of Mayor Daley's police of what is wrong with law enforcement in the United States.

Richard M. Nixon devoted five paragraphs in his acceptance speech to proclaiming that he would bring in a new attorney-general who would do the things essential to restore that "the wave of crime is not going to be the wave of the future."

While it was not a direct attack, plainly by implication Clark had failed to do these things and Nixon got a big hand from the Republicans at Miami Beach.

Clark himself seems somewhat surprised to find himself in the eye of the storm raging over law enforcement, charged with codifying criminals and fighting on the lawless streets with murder, rape and arson daily occurrences in every city. But holding stubbornly to his conviction that the processes of law must not be superseded by the passions of the moment, he shows no signs of changing his ways.

The cry for law and order is directly linked to the attack on the courts, and particularly the Supreme Court. Clark knows only too well that his own position is in this link.

The key piece is Stroh's Carmichael and the demand for Carmichael's prosecution for his role in the Bay of Pigs. The texts of these speeches are in the files of the FBI. Arrest Carmichael for inciting to riot—a huge volume of mail demands that the attorney-general do just this—and conceivably a court of first jurisdiction would convict. The case would then go to the Supreme Court where the conviction would almost certainly be thrown out under the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of speech.

That would, in turn, set off a new wave of hostility toward the high court. This is one of Clark's primary concerns—safeguarding the courts and the guarantees of freedom under the Constitution. And here the drama centres on the confirmation of Abe Fortas to be chief justice of the United States. As the president's principal law officer Clark is directly involved in this bitter controversy. Despite all signs to the contrary the attorney-general believes Fortas will be confirmed. On the outcome the character of the court for perhaps as long as a generation depends. The decision, as Clark views it, is as important as how the voters decide the election in November.

At 40 the attorney-general, ambushed as few of his predecessors have been, has spent hundreds of hours on what has become a major objective—the police systems of the large cities and the prevention of crime. He frequently confers with police chiefs and mayors around the country, stressing the importance of trained, alert police who neither overreact nor underact in the prevention of riots.

In an off-the-record talk to chiefs and mayors earlier this year he put it this way: "In the final analysis the difference between a government that has developed good police-community relations and that which has not is the difference between an authoritarian state which acts through force and fear to control situations and a free society maintaining order through public laws and public officials for the common welfare. You can't handle a situation indefinitely with an army or with occupation."

"Police-community relations are the most important part of your function—the most difficult and the most important police problem of the next 30 to 50 years. It really is. And in the long run it is the very foundation of police work in a free society. It has to be, for otherwise it is war and unending opposition."

One of the charges levelled against Clark is failing to prosecute organized crime, the syndicates, Cosa Nostra. In statistics released the other day he reported record indictments totalling 1,166 in organized crime cases in the fiscal year ending June 30. Of 210 known or suspected members of Cosa Nostra indicted or convicted during the past 13 years, 48 were indicted or convicted during the last fiscal year, according to Clark's figures. Beefing up the organized crime section of Justice's Criminal Division began when Robert F. Kennedy became attorney-general in 1961 and it has continued until today with 70 lawyers are on the job.

The thicket of controversy is so tangled for the quiet-spoken attorney-general. He opposes wire tapping except in cases involving national security. So his accusers say, you want to rob police around the country of an important weapon in the fight on crime. Determined not to become embroiled in the political campaign yet as the angry charges fly, he can hardly stand aloof.

Chicago in Retrospect

FOR four days British reporters in Chicago wrote about the police there with an eloquence shaken by anger. Usually such affairs elicit varying responses, but over Chicago there was rare unanimity. Except that they are men, and that all men are sinners, there seems nothing to be said for the men with the Jeeps, the long sticks, the chemicals and the loud language in Chicago.

In retrospect, it was all foreseeable. Chicago had been warned of terrible things to happen during the Democratic convention. The city has a vast black ghetto, part of it a Stabline of Imperialism blocks, and it is an uneasy thing to walk down it on even the calmest day. More than that, the city map can be neatly marked out with scrolls to say "here be Poles"—or Bohemians, or Italians, or Irish and not even United Nations can display such spectacular disunity.

For some time now the Chicago police have been training for city civil war. Some time ago I attended a Negro demonstration that walked from Chicago into the dormitory town of Cicero—all white and largely Bohemian. The local police were as frightened as I, and it ended in a sort of sun-scorched retreat from Cicero as we hurried back under a hail of stones into the jurisdiction of the Chicago city police.

One of the local police seemed to share the conventional police loathing for the press and thumped me on the stomach. The Chicago police, drawn up six deep on the frontier, looked like the British flag to a man escaping from a peculiarly nasty lot of natives.

They let us through. But a Ciceronian fired a shot in the air. An officer blew a whistle and at once the wedge of police cleared the crowd, seized the man, dragged him behind their lines and beat him unconscious. In passing they also scattered teeth of a photographer who paused to record the scene.

Like many highly-trained armies they were apparently not only ready but anxious for action. More than that, policemen too can be caught up in the emotional drunkenness that can change a crowd of individuals into a mob. And mobs are as frightening as raging floods. I was once caught by one in a refugee village in Algeria—I had annoyed them by saying bonjour to a group of women picking nuts out of each other's hair and I was faced with an animal anger that wanted death as its climax. The chance of a passing French military patrol got me away.

Even trained police can be victims of this same inhuman anger. Certain towns, especially sexual towns, an injury to a mate, and then it's "get the bastards." The resulting battle frenzy used to be greatly subdued by the Village and professional upper-class medical soldiers. The presence of machine-guns and high explosive has reduced its incidence in modern fighting.

In fact, a really good police force needs more training than an army and the patience of a priest bored by the repetitive nature of sin. Not many achieve it.

The French police used to be lethal with their turled oilskin capes. The British Palestine police were spiritually corrupted—as are most colonial police at the end of their tether. The Black and Tans in Ireland were technically auxiliaries and did not deserve the title of police-men.

Indian police learned the lethal technique of the British and though ugly it is more humiliating than dangerous. I once saw it in Bombay used to clear the way for the Blessed Sacrament. The Indians squealed and ran and settled back like starlings, apparently unruffled and still

Criticism of the Police

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

full of respect for the alien god going past in such splendour.

There are really evil police forces like that of South Africa whose most effective work is done in private. There are mad police forces like those of the Congo who were truly dangerous, but to my mind do it far less than any other in the world. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are too proud to behave badly in public. The Irish Guardia are caught up in the national myth of being hospitable—a myth that happens to be true. The Israeli police are unpredictable. Arab police have exquisite manners, until they lose their self-control which is never strong.

And military police, everywhere, are mad, bad and dangerous to contradict.

Police are proper subjects for complaint and criticism. They are neither sovereign nor sacred. But a society at odds with its police forces is in dangerous straits. That, perhaps, more than the broken heads and the burned faces of the public activists, is the tragedy of Chicago. We knew things were not well there. We had no idea they were as bad as that.

Penalty for Litter

OUR organization, Outdoors Unlittered, heartily endorses the stand taken by Mayor Hugh Stephen with regard to litterbugs. Litterbugs are thoughtless people and however many litter cans may be provided, they will still drop their empty cigarette packs, their candy wrappers and used tissues just wherever they happen to be. Many of our smart, well-dressed citizens are litterbugs, and in fairness to our hippie population we were pleased to note recently that two of them went out of their way to use a litter can.

It should not be necessary for the city to have to spend ever-increasing amounts to keep our streets and sidewalks clean. By one means or another we MUST develop a public conscience in the matter of littering. There is need for greater emphasis on this subject in the schools as parental guidance is unfortunately often lacking. There is need for more education by every means available, and in this connection we would like to acknowledge the contribution of the press, particularly Alex Merriman in his Outdoors column.

For those who evidently have no feeling for the appearance of our city, or for the beauty of our beaches, parks and countryside, the imposition of a fine would appear to be the only way to teach habits of tidiness. While substantial fines should be imposed for commercial or industrial offenders, it may be that for the casual litter drop the suggested fine of $10 is unnecessarily punitive. The policeman's whistle with a fine

Our Readers' Views

We have received many letters from our readers in response to our recent article on littering. We are grateful for the interest and support shown by our readers. We will continue to publish their views in this column.

Volunteer organizations such as ours can do little without the support of the authorities. We sincerely hope that the mayors of the various municipalities will join forces with Mayor Stephen in an effort to keep the whole of this beautiful area clean.

Street Names

Emotionalism should not be permitted in the naming of streets. It is, in my opinion, a mistake which would be an embarrassment to attach the name of a public figure to a thoroughfare during the testing period of his public life.

Secondly, giving the name to a little side street in the backwash of the countryside is in no manner a compliment to that person. It is not possible that his career might be such as would warrant the giving of that name to an important street.

History has clearly demonstrated that the full effect of a political career can seldom be judged in the lifetime of a politician. There are some exceptions of course, but these are usually based on merit in a non-political field.

May I suggest the naming of streets be given to a regional committee to select. Surely we have gone past the stage of naming streets of a new subdivision after the children of the subdividers. Let us save this privilege to pay homage to those who have given of themselves to make our community the beautiful place it is in which to live.

AINSLIE J. HELMCKEN, 2617 Dewdney Ave.

Convention Hall

It is very strange that after several years talking, the city suddenly decides that the Empress Hotel is the only place to build a convention hall.

There are several obvious objections. First, at present the Empress parking lot is filled most of the season and the street in front of the Crystal Garden is one long block of traffic. Just how does anyone plan to put more cars into this overcrowded spot, besides talking about erecting more high-rises at the same place!

Second, there has been much talk about how helpful it would be for the convention centre adjoining the hotel. Helpful for whom? The Empress Hotel, obviously. Most convention halls are placed well out in themselves so that people can park nearby and be out of traffic. Instead of heading into it. To mention a few, Atlantic City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland.

Third, at present the Empress Hotel has over 50 conventions a year. At the same time the Empress, Strathcona, Dominion, Douglas and Royal Olympic are full for the whole season. When San Diego claims a 23 per cent increase in tourist dollars because of a new convention hall, no one mentions that San Diego has a year-round summer, not that Victoria could just about be built in Balboa Park. The two cities are as different as possible, and for that reason Victoria draws to summer visitors. I think it should be very carefully considered just how much extra tourists business the city, not the Empress Hotel, would get by spending some $200,000. Personally I feel that if the Gorge were turned from an open sewer into the attractive place it used to be, that everyone including the tourists would benefit and enjoy...

If the city is to put up a large sum for a convention hall, then in all conscience let not one of the wealthiest companies in Canada entice the city into giving them another hotel improvement just to get a hall built.

G. CAMERON.

Strapping

"Scrap Strap Now Victorians Urge" provided very challenging reading. As the daughter of a teacher and a teacher myself who has been strapped as a child I feel I am entitled to make some observations from my own experience.

During my mother's teaching career she had used the strap as a last resource. Fortunately when she married she retained that strap, not with a view of using it on her own children but it might prove valuable.

Being her first child she determined to bring me up with kindly correction and pointed discussions with me when I was naughty. The pay-off came when I had been very naughty and appeared before her saying, "Please take me on your knee and tell me a story." This rather upset her when she realized that her teaching of right and wrong was failing so far short that I thought of it as simply a pleasant story.

Then one day I deliberately took from a neighbor's child something that belonged to her. When she appeared at our door and told my mother what I had done I was called to return the object. I maintained that I had found it on our lawn. I maintained this story even with the evidence right before me. My mother did everything possible to make me tell the truth except strap me. I remained adamant. Finally with no possible alternative I was strapped knowing full well why it was being done. I was a pre-school child at that time. I am now grateful that I can say that my mother did it.

When I completed my elementary education which at that time included Grade 8 I had chalked up an additional three strapings all of which I richly deserved.

No teacher ever straps until all else has failed. I doubt that any Grade 1 child has ever been strapped on his or her first day at school. I would like to suggest to Mrs. Packford that she go to the school where this is supposed to have taken place and ask to see the corporal punishment book for no child is ever strapped without an entry being made.

Proverbs 29:15 says, "The rod and reproof give wisdom; but a child left to himself bringeth his mother to shame."

DUAL ROLE.

Trudeau Course

Your leading article of Aug. 31, entitled "Bloody Culture," should be brought to the attention of the prime minister. He seems to be on a money-saving spree and it all seems to be at the public expense. I would have thought that a reformed government, as promised, would act otherwise and the public would benefit. The benefits so far are to those who do not legitimately require them and at the same time enlarging bureaucracy government by more and more high-salaried positions.

Yes, like many another voter, I wished my vote in favor of Mr. Trudeau thinking that he was the best man to handle the French element; also on account of his promises to help create a Just Society. So far the "just" has a very limited meaning and can be spelled with a small "j."

Only recently at a press conference presented on TV it ended with him searching for a word to answer a question involving a decision he will have to make. He gave his answer but he said that he did not want to be intramurgen. Well, come Sept. 12, we can only hope he won't be. The Opposition parties have plenty of room to test whether or not he is intramurgen. How about the right of civil servants to strike, also the hour-holus crime bill, also the expense for the culture czar, also the winter works program? These items are certainly meeting with public disfavor.

As for treating England like any other country, that is a colonial independent attitude for a Commonwealth country, to talk. Spheres of influence make us all interdependent, and what more so than the Commonwealth including all the nuclear powers, particularly the powder keg to the south of us.

R. B. SWALLOW, 1948 Cedar Hill Court Rd.

U.S., Russia Must Work Together Despite Invasion of Czechoslovakia

The shocking and outrageous invasion of Czechoslovakia by the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies has thrown into question the whole policy of pursuing a détente with the Soviet Union. Once again the U.S. has been forcibly reminded that apparent changes in Soviet policy may prove to be only changes in the weather rather than enduring changes in the climate.

Therefore the U.S. should be vigilant to maintain its defenses and alliances that have proved their value, however much they may need to be reviewed in light of changing circumstances.

Acts of naked aggression such as befell the liberalized Communist government of Czechoslovakia—in the name of Soviet "security"—cannot be overlooked.

Although events still are unfolding, there is legitimate concern that the Moscow agreement, based on the Prague leadership at the point of the Soviet gun may be more of a "Munich" than a compromise. This being the case, countries which brought this grave situation to the attention of the United Nations should not let the matter drop.

Under Coercion

The request of the Czechoslovak representative to discontinue UN consideration can be disregarded as made under coercion. Nor should the certainty of further Soviet moves of any action by the Security Council relating to Czechoslovakia deter anyone.

Without consuming further time with Security Council proceedings bound to abort, the U.S. should join with others seeking to mobilize justified world opinion against the Soviets, in making the Czechoslovakia matter the first item on the agenda of the forthcoming session of the UN General Assembly scheduled to convene on September 24.

In light of world reaction, there can be little doubt that the overwhelming body of UN members would join in demanding complete and speedy Soviet withdrawal and respect for Czechoslovak sovereignty.

The importance of this world political pressure on Moscow should not be discounted. To enlist it is the very least that can be done for the brave Czechoslovak peoples.

Furthermore, the NATO allies are properly reviewing common defence arrangements in light of this ominous move by the Soviet leadership—bringing larger Soviet forces to Central Europe than at any time since the early postwar period. The suggestion for an early NATO meeting at the foreign and defence minister level is well taken.

The Soviets need to be visibly reminded of the vital concern about their change of the status quo and of allied alarmness to its impact on the vital interest of the Western allies.

The goal of a wide-reaching détente between the United States and the Soviet Union has been severely damaged by Soviet intervention in Czechoslovakia.

Mutual Needs

Nevertheless, it remains a wise policy to pursue the goal of mutual understanding between the Soviet Union and the United States on certain vital issues, unless further aggressive actions by the Kremlin make this politically impossible.

In so doing, the U.S. will be acting in the service of American national self-interest as well as world security.

The interest of the Czechoslovak people in regaining the opportunity to progress toward freedom will not be served by a world engulfed in nuclear flames.

The essential basis for seeking Soviet-American understanding is founded on the common interests of both countries in certain vital matters. These include:

- Avoiding the danger of a military confrontation with its great risk to the survival of not only the Soviet and American peoples, but of all mankind.

- Diminishing the inter-able economic burden imposed by an escalating arms race and the incredible costs of sophisticated weaponry.

- Improving the quality of life in our respective societies to meet pressing needs.

- Helping the poor nations of the world economically if only to prevent their being taken in by Mao-Tse-tung's bellicose doctrines which if widely accepted would threaten the interests of both Russia and the United States.

Here are some of the vital issues on which the U.S. and the Russians should seek mutual understanding:

Of highest priority are the scheduled talks to halt the nuclear arms race. It is of the utmost urgency to achieve agreement on measures to control and limit the ever-increasing build-up of strategic nuclear missiles, and to take steps to forestall the widespread deployment of antiballistic missile systems on both sides.

The ABM systems involve fantastic economic costs with ultimate contributions to the security of either side likely to be zero or even a minus quantity.

Conversations on this crucially important subject were about to begin before the invasion of Czechoslovakia. It is imperative that they go forward. Their success is in the vital interest of the United States.

It is also in the U.S. interest that the U.S. Senate act promptly to ratify the nuclear non-proliferation treaty designed to prevent the further spread of these terrible weapons into the hands of more and more nations.

Middle East, Too

The justifiable sense of outrage against the Russians must not be allowed to obscure the fact that U.S. security interests will be served by this treaty.

The Middle East in another area in which understanding between the Soviet Union and the U.S. continues to be essential.

If, as the Soviets profess, they really support the November 22, 1967 resolution of the Security Council looking to a Middle East settlement, they should begin by agreeing to limitations on the arms race in the area, as President Johnson has urged.

And even more fundamentally, the Soviets should stop seeking short range political advantage by all-out endorsement of unworkable Arab positions. Instead, they should join with an even-handed approach to help all parties—Israel as well as the Arab states—agree upon a just, magnanimous and permanent peace settlement. The Soviet Union and the United States should reach a mutual understanding about seeking an honorable settlement of the war in Vietnam, each for good reasons of its own. Soviet co-operation can be a key factor in such a settlement.

One important reason why I have urged a cessation of bombing of North Vietnam is to open the way for the Soviets to use their influence effectively with Hanoi.

Of course the price of understandings even in these vital areas never can be the silencing of public opinion from speaking out against Soviet use of force or intimidation to repress liberalization of communist systems in Eastern Europe. And the U.S. government must continue to enlist worldwide pressure for withdrawal of Soviet forces from Czechoslovakia.

Nor need we feel restrained in the slightest measure in condemning Soviet violations of human rights. Repression by Soviet authorities of their own intellectuals, discrimination against minorities and religions, notably against Soviet Jews, cannot and should not be ignored. These relics of Stalinism militate against détente, and no one need hesitate to speak out forcefully against them.

I have found from my experience at the United Nations, where I negotiated on many major issues, including the space treaty and the nonproliferation treaty, that speaking out and taking a hardheaded attitude toward the Russians is the way to do business with them.

I advocate the policy of détente in these vital areas in full awareness of some immense difficulties. Among them is the Soviet conception of world order which is far from the Western view—as the Russians showed so clearly in Czechoslovakia.

But even this display of primitive force cannot erase the realities of this decade: the growth in Eastern Europe and elsewhere of aspirations for freedom; the universal need for security and economic growth; and the danger to human survival threatened by nuclear war.

These are the realities which could supply common ground for understandings between the two superpowers, where recognition may be given to the legitimate interests of both nations. Long ago Lord Palmerston noted that great powers do not have permanent friends or permanent enemies. They have permanent interests.

A similar point was made by George Washington in his farewell address. Washington warned that "permanent inveterate antipathies against particular nations and passionate attachments for others should be excluded."

In U.S. relations with the Russians therefore the U.S. government should follow Washington's advice and avoid extremes of either undue trust or antagonism. It should act deliberately and imaginatively to seek the common ground of mutual self-interest. In a nuclear age this is necessarily defined as survival.

No Ideological Threat to Soviet Union

Romania's Under Control

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS, from Bucharest

Despite the threats and pressure from its big Soviet neighbor, Romania's tough Communist leaders continued to forge their own independent line within the Eastern European bloc.

The tensions generated by Romania's running feud with the five Warsaw Pact countries that invaded Czechoslovakia for stepping out of line have surprisingly created no panic here.

And the chief reason for this phenomenon is, ironically enough, that no other country in the Eastern bloc is more rigidly controlled along orthodox Marxist-Leninist lines outside the Soviet Union itself.

The central control of Communist Party chairman and president Nicolae Ceausescu is total. The press and radio and other means of information are so closely guarded by censorship that no word that might differ from the official line reaches the people except through broadcasts from outside the country.

Officials one is able to meet carefully echo the words of their leader without deviation so that one feels he is simply getting a reading from the Communist Party newspaper.

No radical economic reform has been instituted here which would relieve the nation's industry and business from the strictures of central planning and control from the top. Very few people ever get out of the country except on official business or unless they have been invited to visit abroad at the host's expense.

Thus while people in various walks of life have been overheard to express fear of a Soviet invasion and have been seen storing up tinny goods and other emergency supplies, there is a kind of enforced calm throughout the country.

It has been broken from time to time by strident speeches by Ceausescu and other government leaders drumming up support for their position, denouncing the invasion of Czechoslovakia and demanding that Moscow once again uphold the right of each individual Communist country to carry out its own independent policies.

Ceausescu has no ideological quarrel with Moscow over Communist orthodoxy for he is as orthodox as anyone in the Kremlin. While he has since the beginning of this year asserted the right of Czechoslovakia to push through the reforms which have gotten that country into such trouble with its Moscow-led allies, the Romanian leader has shown no inclination to liberalize his own regime.

There is no free-wheeling movement of students, writers and other intellectuals that might infect the other countries of the alliance.

It is his independent line of foreign affairs, in relations among the Communist states and in economic cooperation with them that have aroused the ire of Moscow and the allies in Warsaw, East Berlin, Budapest and Sofia who are more eager to do the Kremlin's bidding.

Ceausescu has been driven by one single purpose since he inherited the reins of power from the late Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej three years ago. He has been determined to free his country from economic dependence upon the Soviet Union. And thus he has used every political and material resource at his extremely shrewd command to loosen Romania from Moscow's apron strings.

He bluntly rejected the dictates of the East bloc economic alliance which had allotted to his country the role of the provider of food for the rest of the bloc, remaining completely dependent upon the other nations for industrial products and consumer goods.

But Ceausescu has not yet managed to break entirely his country's dependence upon the East bloc. It is not easy for him to get investment credits from the West and he has had to do business there mostly on cash and barter deals.

The iron ore and coke and copper and other metals for the nation's new industry still come mostly from the Soviet Union and Ceausescu has only recently begun a quest for other sources in India and South America.

The Ceausescu regime has also used political leverage to achieve these gains in independence. This is considered to be the principal reason for the neutral stand Romania has taken in the Soviet Union's bitter struggle with China for the dominating influence over the world communist movement.

Romania refused to go along with the rest of the Eastern bloc in breaking off relations with Israel during the war in the Middle East last year. Ceausescu infuriated his allies in East Germany and Poland by taking up diplomatic relations with West Germany and greatly expanding his trade with that country.

And while he does not see eye-to-eye with the renegade policies of President Tito of Yugoslavia, he has embittered Moscow by teaming up with him on several issues, the most dramatic of which has been the condemnation of the Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia.

These are the factors that set the most Orthodox communist state in Eastern Europe apart from its orthodox sisters. Unlike the Czechoslovak reform leader Alexander Dubcek, this country's leader is not trying to make communism more attractive either to his own people or to the rest of the world.

But he is trying to build an independent and self-reliant nation out of a country whose long and bitter history has been one of subjugation from the times of the Roman conquerors.

And the possible threat of once again becoming the victim of foreign conquest and subjugation has aroused a spirit of nationalism which has rallied the 20,000,000 inhabitants of this isolated Balkan country behind their leader as none of his own programs could have done.

Block Climbs To New High At Vancouver

VANCOUVER—A new high in Block Bros. Industries featured a strong industrial sector, with the closing trade at 19, up 1 on the day. Great National Land, another real estate firm, dipped 15 to 22.5, while the computer excitement of EDP Data Centre brought some price fluctuations before the stock dropped 1/2 on the day at 20.5. Field's Stores was strong at 15.5, up 1/2.

Some lower priced mines made progress. Bethex was up 1/2 at 1.38, and Butte rose 1/2 to 1.21. Top trading Trojan added 1/2 at 3.1. Silver Standard became very active late in the session rising 10 to 1.34 while Venus was ahead 35 at 2.70. Sunlite and Stampede performed best among oils.

A Gain-But Just
TORONTO (CP)—The market posted its seventh successive advance in active trading. The rise was fractional and the industrial index showed a loss for most of the day.

Wajax gained 3/4 to 29 1/2. Block Bros. 1 to 19 1/2. Investors Group 1 1/2 to 10. Dominion Stores 1/2 to 19 1/2. Crush International 1/2 to 19 1/2 and Inco 1/2 to 40 1/2.

BA Oil lost 1 to 44 1/2. Falconbridge 1/2 to 55. Gordon MacKay 1/2 to 14. Moore Corp. 1/2 to 10 1/2. Dominion Textile 1/2 to 14 1/2.

Among the most active traders, Trans-Prairie Pipelines advanced 1 1/2 to 11 1/2. Brambles 1 1/2 to 13 1/2 and Hardee Farm 6 cents to 85 cents. Capital Building dropped 1 1/2 to 4.95.

A. G. F. Manufacturer jumped 3 1/2 to 54. Canadian Breweries slipped 1/2 to 9 after announcing that its 50th anniversary in Quebec City will be closed during next spring. Patino Mining dropped 4 1/2 to 35 1/2.

Among western oils, Asmara jumped 1 1/2 to 37.70. United Cereals 15 cents to 36.50 and Western Decal 35 cents to 44.85.

Wajax Advances
MONTREAL (CP)—Selectivity and caution prevailed as the overall price trend retreated narrowly at the close.

Price changes were mainly fractional in all sectors although selectivity pushed a number of stocks up notably on the plus side.

Wajax highlighted the list at 29 1/2, Ontario Steel 3 1/2 to 32. Radio Engineering 1 1/2 to 40 1/2. Handy Andy 1 1/2 to 11 1/2 and Dominion Bridge 1 to 15 1/2.

B.C. Telephone added 1/2 to 59 1/2 and Scott-Lassalle 1 to 31. Canadian British Aluminium lost 1 to 18.

London Stock Prices
LONDON (CP)—Stocks continued to rise in the U.S. dollar as the pound sterling fell to a new low of 1.00. The pound fell to 1.00, the lowest since 1947.

Gold Prices
LONDON (AP)—Wednesday's closing gold prices in U.S. dollars: London 100.00, Paris 100.00, Frankfurt 100.00, Rome 100.00, Hong Kong 100.00.

Data Firm Founders Instant Millionaires

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Two chief officers of EDP Data Centre, which burst upon the Vancouver Stock Exchange last weekend, are "paper" millionaires as a result of the stock's rise to $26 1/4 a share from its issue price of $5.

William Roy Wood of Vancouver, 29, the president, and Earl Anthony Constable of Montreal, 32, the executive vice-president, own 127,500 shares each, market-valued at more than $3,000,000.

Wood and Constable four years ago were employees of IBM and left to capitalize on the fast-growing electronic data processing business. They claim EDP is the largest independently owned processing company of its kind in Canada.

YEARLY SALARY
The "instant" triple millionaires have a yearly salary of $24,000 apiece. EDP had revenues of $65,430 in 1965 and in the first five months of 1968 this had grown to $300,832.

The company has offices in Vancouver, Montreal and Toronto and is planning to expand to Ottawa, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Edmonton.

OTTAWA (CP)—Good weather this week has improved harvesting conditions on the Prairies, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

Swathing is in full swing throughout Alberta and Saskatchewan but combining is still delayed by cool, wet weather. Excessive rain in Manitoba has damaged crops extensively.

The report, last of the 1968 series of telegraphic reports on crop conditions across Canada, estimates wheat will be low-grade. Insufficient threshing has been done to assess the effect of the weather on average yields.

companies it is eyeing is Interprovincial Steel and Pipe Corp. of Regina.

James Kerr, Trans Canada chairman and president, said there have been preliminary discussions about a takeover but no negotiations with Interprovincial.

Interprovincial makes large-size pipe, such as is used by Trans Canada for its natural gas pipelines. Interprovincial Steel and Pipe common shares rose Wednesday to $7 1/2, more than $2 from a week ago, as the rumor of Trans Canada's interest became known.

DOUBLEHEADED PROBLEM
Canada's major economic problems at the moment are persistent inflation at the same time as an increase in unemployment levels, says the Toronto-Dominion Bank's economic research department.

This is happening because Canada in 1965-66 failed to face the problem of continued rising prices, and remedial steps were not taken until too late. The recent anti-inflationary measures are taking effect and creating a worsening employment picture.

"This is likely to worsen in the coming months," says the bank.

WELL ABOVE
While the inflation threat is not so severe as it was and prices are not rising so quickly as last year, wage increases are continuing well above any possible increase in national productivity.

"Even the expected 5-per-cent increase in the gross national product this year will not be sufficient to provide enough new jobs for Canada's very rapidly expanding labor force," says the bank.

WORSE THAN EXPECTED
France's financial crisis last June, following the widespread strike that crippled the country's trade, has been disclosed as much more serious than was estimated.

The U.S. treasury department in that month bought $200,000,000 of French gold to remove to bolster the sagging franc. The sale had been kept

More Russians Gone

PRAGUE (AP) — More columns of Soviet troops, tanks and artillery withdrew from Prague Wednesday, apparently as a result of a visit to Moscow by Czechoslovak Premier Oldrich Cernik.

The only officially announced result of Cernik's trip Tuesday was an economic agreement. Informal sources said, however, that Soviet leaders had shown themselves willing to withdraw the bulk of their troops from Czechoslovak cities.

Tanks and soldiers have been camped in parks and other public sites since the occupation of Czechoslovakia by the armies of the Soviet Union, East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Bulgaria on Aug. 20-21.

STILL IN CITY

Troops still in the city appeared to be preparing to leave. The bulk of the tanks guarding the Soviet Embassy also left, but some could still be seen inside the embassy garden.

Among the sites freed during the day were the editorial offices of the weekly Reporter, put out by the Czechoslovak Journalists' Association and a frequent target of the Moscow press. The magazine's editors announced the next issue will appear next week.

Czechoslovak Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek met here with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov after a briefing from Cernik, who talked in Moscow with Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

A small crowd waited as Dubcek arrived at Communist party headquarters in a black limousine. Some embraced him. Others presented him with flowers or gifts. He accepted them with a broad smile.

The arrival of Kuznetsov, who was accompanied by Soviet Ambassador V. S. Chervonenko, was ignored by the crowd.

On his return from Moscow, Cernik told reporters he informed the Soviet leaders that "certain effective measures will be realized in our country which will have a favorable influence on further development."

Presumably he referred to domestic press censorship and the barring of political groups other than the Communist party.

SOVIET DEMAND

These actions were demanded by the Russians as one condition for the withdrawal of the 600,000 Soviet bloc troops now occupying Czechoslovakia.

However, the Czechoslovak leaders have promised that these laws are temporary and have reassured the population that there will be no departure from what one newspaper termed "Dubcek socialism with a human face."

Long Soviet Case Defends Actions on Foreign Soil

MOSCOW (LAT) — The Soviet Union presented a theoretical case Wednesday for military intervention in other communist countries where alien political pressures threaten Kremlin interests.

This was one of several conclusions drawn from an exhaustive defence of the Soviet decision to occupy Czechoslovakia with an estimated 600,000 Russian and Soviet-bloc troops.

In what amounted to an ideological dissertation on the crisis, Moscow in effect reserved the right to intervene again under similar circumstances in a communist allied nation.

Official Organ

The theoretical discourse, running several thousand words, was published in Pravda, official organ of the Soviet Communist party.

At no point did the article suggest or even imply that political conditions similar to those in Czechoslovakia now might exist in another communist country.

The article, nevertheless, was viewed here as an expression of Soviet determination to judge what is proper or improper in the political and economic development of the East European allied community.

Arm of Policy

On the issue of military intervention as an arm of policy now or in the future, Pravda set up this equation: if reactionary elements in the world have the right "to suppress revolution in other countries, to export counter-revolution," then what is to stop "progressive forces" from coming to the aid of some country in defence of socialism.

The paper did not elaborate on its formula for intervention. But informed circles here interpreted the comment as a Soviet attempt to draw parallels between the crisis in Vietnam and the one in Czechoslovakia.

Double Edge

The implication was that the United States cannot argue an American military presence in Vietnam and at the same time rule out Soviet armed action in Czechoslovakia.

"One of the main lessons of the past events (in Czechoslovakia) is the reminder to communists of the need to learn the enemy's plans in time," Pravda said. The message, while in vague ideological language, was that if communist allies are slow to act against counterrevolutionary pressures, then the Soviet Union may be compelled to intervene.

Pravda underscored the right to use military force, when necessary, with this explanation:

Deadly Policy

"If we are to share the views of those who do not understand, it follows that first we had to wait for the shooting and hanging of communists, and only then to come to the assistance of the champions of socialism."

"But to wait until the counterrevolution pointed its submachine guns at communists and all those who treasure the cause of socialism would have been a criminal and deadly policy for (communist) revolutionaries."

Pravda, in its theoretical discourse on intervention, argued that a great many, including communist countries, had failed to recognize what Moscow described as a "new historic phenomenon" in Czechoslovakia.

Quiet Means

That phenomenon was said to be counterrevolution by "quiet" or "peaceful" means in the initial stages.

A "quiet" counterrevolution, said Pravda, is conducted by persons who profess strong support for communism while, in fact, trying to undermine the system from within.

According to the Soviet theory, this first "peaceful" stage is followed later by violent armed resistance against a communist leadership.

"Where does it come from... this superb new imported White Rum?"

"Why from Lemon Hart & Sons of London, who can be counted on to produce a White Demerara Rum unique in all the world."

"Lemon Hart White is so versatile it's delicious with soda water and a slice of lemon or lime. It makes a superb Daiquiri, is perfect with tonic water or fruit juice, and is actually as smooth as any people enjoy it as a liqueur."

Sugar Cane does not grow in Canada — Lemon Hart Rums are 100% imported.

British Crack Arouses Moscow Anger in UN

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The Soviet Union warned the United Nations Wednesday against reviving debate on the Czechoslovak situation, declaring that such "interference" would prevent normal operation of the world body.

Deputy foreign Minister Jacob Malik, angered by a British jibe at the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia, issued the threat in the UN Security Council.

He did not elaborate on how his delegation would react if the Czechoslovak issue were raised again but observers took the statement as a warning against bringing the question before the General Assembly later this month.

BRITISH POINT

Malik lashed out at the U.S., Britain and other critics of Soviet policy in Eastern Europe after he made a speech in support of the principles of freedom and independence in supporting the admission of newly-independent Swaziland, a former British protectorate, to UN membership.

British delegate Lord Caradon said Britain had "done more to end imperialism than any other country in the history of the world."

Malik replied that a country which had taken the most had the most to return, and Caradon rejoined: "I would merely add that I think his words will be heard with happiness in Czechoslovakia."

Flushing with anger, the Soviet delegate said:

PROTEST MADE

"I categorically protest against the raising by Lord Caradon of a question that has absolutely nothing to do with the matter under discussion or for that matter with the UN."

"The UN and its bodies were created and exist not in order to inflame an atmosphere of hatred and mistrust among states."

"Any further attempt to bring this organization into discussions of such a problem will only deal a grievous blow to its authority and prevent its normal operation."

Labor Unit Tells Nurses:

Justice—Not Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's new labor mediation commission said Wednesday it didn't want to hear about difficulties psychiatric nurses claim they have had in negotiating with the B.C. government. "This is not an appeal," said commission chairman John Parker, former judge of Yukon Territorial Court. "How you got here is not our concern. It is to give you justice now."

D. F. McTaggart, counsel for the 400-member Psychiatric Nurses Association, said the ruling would prejudice his case. The commission is hearing a dispute involving nurses and the Civil Service Commission. Allan Mercer, civil service commission counsel, charged at one point that one psychiatric nurse at the Riverview hospital in Coquitlam, can neither read nor write.

Dr. William James McFarlane, clinical director at Riverview, told the three-man mediation body this would surprise him if true. But he conceded some nurses may have less than Grade 10 education.

Dr. McFarlane said turnover in nursing personnel at Riverview is interfering with treatment because it disrupts procedures.

The hearing into the wage and contract dispute continues.

What's Next Now That Salazar III?

By DAVID MAZZARELLA

LISBON (AP) — For years the Portuguese have been asking: "Who comes after Salazar?" Now the question has unprecedented urgency, and there is still no answer.

The 78-year-old premier, the world's most durable dictator, lies in a Lisbon hospital following surgery last Saturday to remove a blood clot beside the brain.

Each succeeding medical bulletin says he is doing well, but due to his age and the delicacy of the operation, there is speculation that the "Senhor Doutor" may be left with some disability that will in effect mean the end of the Salazar era.

The average citizen finds it difficult to imagine Portugal without Antonio de Oliveira Salazar. No Portuguese under 40 has known any other national leader.

The mark of his coldly analytical mind, iron will and austere personality is everywhere in Portugal's authoritarian "corporate state."

***

The question of who will follow him has vast importance, not only for this country of 10,000,000 struggling to catch up with the prosperity of the rest of Western Europe.

It also has a bearing on Portugal's huge African territories. Many believe only Salazar's determination can withstand African nationalism and establishment and the opposition.

Although an ultraconservative, he was considered the most democratic member of Salazar's cabinet. His departure from the government improved his image among many dissident groups.

Two other men often mentioned are Marcello Caetano and Adriano Moreira, both also former cabinet ministers.

Caetano is the widely-respected head of Lisbon University's law college and has had wide administrative experience in the government. He is a former monarchist who is reputed to have strong backing among Roman Catholic groups.

Moreira is a former minister of overseas provinces who has many friends among intellectuals. But his star seems to be on the wane as the result of a key appointment last month by Salazar. The premier named Gen. Vaz Monteiro Deslandes, Moreira's bitter opponent on African policy, to head the joint chiefs of staff.

***

Deslandes now is considered a dark horse for the premier's post. Perhaps more significantly, he is believed to have a large say in what candidate gets the backing of the military, essential for any successor.

Francisco Nogueira, Portugal's popular foreign minister, is also given an outside chance.

Government, Industry

British Finger-Poking Hit

LONDON (CP) — Socialist ministerial meddling in Britain's nationalized industries comes in for a rough mauling from a Commons committee in a report released Wednesday.

Labor government cabinet members "have done largely the opposite of what Parliament intended" by piling their fingers into management instead of laying down policies, the all-party committee concludes after a two-year study.

The report undoubtedly will have a best-seller impact among the proliferation of officials in the socialized industries despite its stratospheric price of 25 shillings and sixpence ($15.92) per copy.

It also will be required reading for some ministers who would see their powers eroded severely if it were implemented.

For it calls for an entirely new relationship between the government and the mammoth complex of government-controlled industry if this side of the Socialist experiment is to succeed.

The main recommendation is that a single super-minister should be put on top of the whole commercial setup—railways, steel, coal, electricity, gas and airlines—instead of having control scattered around among a miscellany of ministers.

First reaction among political observers is that a shuffle of such far-reaching consequence is highly unlikely, if only for the reason that it would meet hostility from a large segment of the ministry yielding power. First editorial reaction also is distinctly hostile.

"Has a Soviet ring to it," comments The Evening Standard.

However, the Commons committee found plenty to criticize in the present setup whereby the industries are under such departments as transport, power, trade, Scottish affairs and the postmaster-general.

Under its proposal, the ministry of power would virtually disappear.

The report says that under the existing setup there has been confusion, weakness and bitterness between heads of state-owned corporations and ministers and their departments.

The report is sure to touch off skirmishes in the Commons. There could be ructions within the cabinet should Prime Minister Wilson decide to act on it.

But a number of ministry mergers are believed planned for autumn anyway, and these should give Wilson enough to handle in one bite.

Sale of Hall Enriches NDP

The New Democratic Party is $3,671 richer as the result of a contribution from proceeds of the sale of the now demolished Mr. Tolmie social hall built by the OCF.

The cheque for this amount was presented Wednesday to Opposition Leader Robert Stanbury by Jim Edwards, a local party official.

The NDP leader said disposal of assets also saw creation of a $5,000 scholarship fund for Mt. Douglas High school students going to university, two $3,000 trust funds for the Salvation Army and fund of the G. R. Pearkes John Howard Society, and a $3,000 donation to the building Clinic for Handicapped Children.

Ice Warning

Montreal Given Shivers

ST. HILAIRE, Que. (CP) — Montreal should disappear under a mass of ice and snow about 30,000 years from now, a glaciologist has told a meeting of glaciologists.

Dr. C. T. Wilson, a faculty member of the Wellington University in New Zealand, said Montreal was unlikely to escape the perils of the next ice age.

"There is no reason why Montreal should escape," he said.

He added that the last ice age ended roughly 10,000 years ago and the next one was due in 30,000 years.

"The single biggest contributor to the next ice age will be the Antarctic ice sheet which, if all melted, would raise the ocean water level 260 feet.

"Of course, we don't expect the entire Antarctic ice shield to be melted, just enough to raise the ocean level by 50 feet," he said.

"The rise will inundate many of the world's large cities," he said.

Dentist Talks

Health Boss Silent

After two days of closed meetings with dentists, the health ministers of the four Western provinces have decided to keep their mouths shut.

Health Minister Ralph Lofmark, named spokesman for the meeting which ended late Tuesday, said by telephone from Vancouver Wednesday he could not even disclose the topic of discussion.

Since Welfare Minister Dan Campbell entered talks briefly Monday, there has been speculation one of the topics covered concerned payment to dentists for welfare cases. Representatives of the dental profession came from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C.

Mr. Lofmark, however, said: "I am under the strictest instructions not to make any comment whatever. All I can say is that we met for two full days, and decided to say nothing."

Lakehead Strike Likely On House Table

OTTAWA (CP)—Hopes of ending the Lakehead grain handlers' strike short of legislation faded Wednesday with a lightning exchange of company-union proposals and rejections.

Representatives of 1,300 grain handlers and 10 elevator companies remained available to federal mediators but, on the basis of statements by the parties, there appeared little chance that they can reach agreement.

Prime Minister Trudeau reflected the prevailing mood when he told a news conference he is less than optimistic about a settlement.

Both the prime minister and union officials criticized management in the strike, which began July 18, for disclosing its latest wage offer in a press release earlier this week.

UNWISE THING

"It seems to me this was a very unwise thing to do," Trudeau said.

Frank Mazur, chief negotiator for the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks, said there was a gentleman's agreement not to disclose details of their positions outside the bargaining table.

The companies made a fresh wage offer Monday night here and released details of it in a statement at the Lakehead Tuesday.

THREE YEARS

They proposed a $1-an-hour increase over a three-year contract. This was an increase from the companies' offer of 53 cents over 24 months.

Wednesday the union rejected the latest offer and proposed an increase of 90 cents an hour over two years. The union had been seeking $1.06 more an hour since the strike began. The average pay of grainhandlers is about $2.50 an hour.

This latest union proposal came about 10 a.m. By 11:45 a.m. the company had rejected it. The parties returned to separate rooms in the labor department headquarters and mediators D. S. Tysoe and William P. Kelly resumed their commuting between the groups.

JOHN D SPEAKS

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said in an interview the grainhandlers strike, which is blocking movement of western grain through the Great Lakes and tying up needed elevators, is the "most important issue" facing Parliament.

He said Trudeau should have recalled Parliament—which reopens today—three weeks ago.

NO SCOOP

Trudeau was asked whether the Commons will deal quickly with the Lakehead strike. He said he did not want to "scoop Parliament" by predicting when the matter might be considered. Labor Minister Macpherson met union representatives for about 45 minutes late Wednesday afternoon, the first time he has seen them since Sunday. He was accompanied by department officials. He declined to comment on the purpose of his visit.

Clyne

Japanese Wanted In Pact

TORONTO (CP)—A Canadian lumber executive called Wednesday for inclusion of Japan in a free trade area involving Canada, the United States, Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

J. V. Clyne, chairman of MacMillan Bloedel, said in a prepared speech to the Canada-Japan Trade Council that such a move would bring advantages in resources, markets and industrial strength.

Said Clyne: "If the United Kingdom does not join the EEC (European Economic Community) then a very good argument can be made for a formation of a free trade area between the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada. "But the United States and Canada face not only the Atlantic Ocean, but the Pacific, and both oceans have similar attractions as avenues of trade ... We should start our forward planning before it is too late."

Local Merchants

Indifference Greets Christmas Parade

Merchants, and not the City of Victoria, should be responsible for arranging and financing a proposed Christmas parade, the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association decided Tuesday night.

The association discussed the findings of questionnaires sent to downtown businesses asking their attitude to supporting the parade.

Of 250 letters sent out, only 70 were returned. Chairman John Rafter told the meeting that 43 firms said they were not interested.

"The majority of those who replied were against it," he said.

TO MERCHANTS

Esquimalt Ald. Arthur Young suggested the matter be turned over to the merchants with the non-financial support of the celebrations association, and the members agreed.

Other business of the meeting included a suggestion by Jaycee representative Brian Small that the association put out a calendar of events to be available to everyone who paid a small fee, probably $1.

This would prevent intrusions such as last May's scheduling of the Jaycee Fair and a circus during the same week.

JAYCEE PROJECT

It was decided that the association was not in a position to take on the publishing of such a calendar, and at Mr. Small's suggestion, the matter was referred to the Jaycees.

"I think this would be a worthwhile project for us," said Mr. Small.

It was also announced that Victoria Day celebrations for 1969 would follow a slightly different pattern than previous years.

The parade will start the festivities, and the Jaycee Fair will open directly after the parade finishes. This is being tried, partly because Victoria Day will be May 19 in 1969, and to have the fair in the preceding week would make it too early.

Saatchi Told

Debt on Sewers
Lasts Forever

Nobody is ever going to be free of debt on sewers, Saatchi's comptroller-treasurer told a meeting in Cloverdale elementary school Wednesday night.

The meeting, called by Saatchi council to explain the Sept. 28 sewer consolidation referendum drew about 75 persons. Filing questions were Mayor Hugh Curtis, most of the aldermen, engineer Neville Lyle and comptroller-treasurer John Tribe.

Mr. Tribe said sewer debts would go on because there is so much to build in the way of sewers, outfalls and trunks.

But the basic principle of the upcoming vote is the amalgamation of all sewers and 40-odd rates in Saatchi into one system.

Victoria to P.E.I.

World Champion
Skates In Alone

It wasn't that Clint Shaw really expected a hero's welcome.

But it would have been nice, he said, if someone—even just one person—had bothered to turn out in Charlottetown, P.E.I., to watch him establish what he says is a world's record.

"A couple of American TV networks and the CBC and CTV were supposed to meet me when I arrived," said the disappointed Vancouver man after finishing the last lap of a roller-skating journey that began in Victoria last year.

As it turned out, no one showed up for the grand finish but a wet and shivering Clint Shaw himself.

A cold Atlantic rain was beating down as he skated along the main street of Charlottetown about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, unheralded and seemingly even unnoticed.

"I don't know what happened. Nobody turned up," he said in a telephone interview with The Colonist.

He sounded like someone who would have been happy if even the eyes of one of those famous P.E.I. potatoes had been pointed at him.

FAITH FACTOR

Clint, who says his wife Christine had "the faith and understanding to prevent me from being a quitter," skated to Expo from Victoria as a centennial project and became snowbound later in Quebec.

He returned with his wife to B.C. and set out again alone on his 27th birthday Aug. 29 to complete the skating trip from Quebec to Charlottetown.

He may go on to St. John's, Nfld., as he originally planned. But he may also change his mind because of the lack of interest shown here, and fly to Victoria where he intends to settle with his wife and two daughters.

NO PLACE TO STAY

It was 2 a.m. in Charlottetown when he phoned and by then nobody had offered him a place to stay for the night.

"And here I am, still wet and cold," he said.

He said he hoped things would brighten today when he was to see the mayor.

Would he walk to the mayor's office?

"No. I always wear my skates!"

Even in bed?

"Well, no, it's not quite like that."

Boy's Head Grazed
By Bullet

Nine-year-old Tommy Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brooks, narrowly missed death Wednesday night when a .22-calibre bullet grazed his scalp.

Reports from the boy's home at 424 Happy Valley Road indicated he and his half-brothers, Wayne Byron, 14, and Kerry Byron, 11, had been examining a rifle, which discharged as Wayne was returning it to its place on the kitchen wall.

The bullet grazed Tommy's head and he fell to the floor but did not lose consciousness, according to the other boys. He is in St. Joseph's Hospital where he underwent surgery and was said to be in fair condition by hospital authorities.

Bidders Given
More Time

Contractors bidding on extensions to Royal Jubilee Hospital have been granted a one-week extension in the tender deadline.

Bids for the new laboratory facilities in the south and east blocks were to have been opened Wednesday, but a spokesman for the hospital said Wednesday the new date would be Sept. 18.

Vehicle Station Tests Everyone's Mettle

By DON COLLINS

It's a place of utter confusion. It lacks uniformity and sometimes doesn't correctly interpret the safety standards. It is hitting Greater Victoria service stations with an unnecessary backlash of rejected automobiles.

All of this, however, is just one side of the picture presented Wednesday of the first provincially-operated motor vehicle testing station. The other side:

Its standards are first class, but unfortunately those of too many service stations are not. It is proof of "whole hearted" co-operation by the province in the matter of road safety and is proving more successful all the time.

Oddly enough, the vastly different views are being presented chiefly by the same group of men — the service station operators.

One of those on the attack is Roy Robertson, operator of the Town and Country Texaco Station at 3415 Douglas, who said "there seems to be a high degree of confusion."

Mr. Robertson, who said he had been in the business about 35 years, disagreed that there should be one set of headlight standards for sedans, station wagons and pickup trucks.

"This way, you put a man, six or seven kids and lot of luggage in a station wagon and his headlights are showing him nothing but the tops of telephone poles," he said.

As evidence of a lack of uniformity among the 18 inspectors at the testing station, he offered this example:

"One of my customers went through Lane 1 at the station and came back with two rejections. These were fixed and when he went back he went through Lane 2 and got three new rejections."

R. G. Whitlock, superintendent of inspection, said this seemed highly unlikely because it was not a policy to retest cars on point other than those for which they were rejected.

Of the uniformity lack claim, he said: "Well, look, you can't say every man is going to have the same answers. But these men are all experienced mechanics. They have standards by which they work, but there comes a time when they must use their own judgment."

One service station operator said customers had been rejected for having amber stop lights, even though the Motor Vehicle Act says this is legal.

Standards, he said, had been copied from the successful Vancouver-operated station that was established 30 years ago, and from top U.S. testing stations.

Average waiting time, he said, had been reduced to 20 minutes.

On Tuesday, 620 vehicles were tested, compared to the one-day high of 712. He said the rejection average at this early date was 33 per cent, compared to 37 per cent in Vancouver.

Bow, Propellers Bent on Warship

HMCS Saskatchewan presented a sorry sight both fore and aft as she was taken from the water Wednesday for repair of damage suffered when she hit an underwater object Sunday in Active Pass.

Official preliminary estimates set the damage at about $15,000 to the vessel's bow and propellers. A Canadian Forces spokesman said it was expected the destroyer escort would be back in service before the end of the month.

The bottom of the bow was bent over at right angles, and the propellers looked like wilted daisies after the encounter with what was reported to have been a rock. Propeller damage indicated both screws were going astern when they hit.

Further tests will be required to determine whether the ship's drive shafts were knocked out of alignment.

A board of inquiry investigating the incident should complete its work next week, a spokesman said. Findings will be sent to senior officers of Maritime Command Pacific, and to Ottawa.

Cmdr. Norman S. Jackson has been in command of the Saskatchewan since July, 1967.

Second Petition Reflects Change By Taxpayers

By DON GAIN

A group of property-owners on McKenzie Avenue has decided in favour of storm drains, curbs, gutters and boulevard improvements and sidewalks after all.

A petition will be presented to Saanich municipality this morning requesting the resubmission of a local improvement project for McKenzie between Douglas and Quadra.

The project was abandoned in January, when 51 of 91 property owners on McKenzie and Simon signed a petition against it. This was not enough to defeat it, but the public works committee decided, in view of the petition, to drop it.

STORM DRAINS

In March, a local improvement was initiated for property owners in the area on McKenzie from just west of Quadra to just east of Century and part of Cedar Hill Cross Road, to build curbs, gutters, sidewalks and storm drains.

This morning's petition has 28 signatures representing properties. Peter Groschevski of 791 McKenzie said Wednesday night.

He and Robert Weicker of 799 McKenzie circulated the petition and will present it to the municipality.

RESUBMISSION

The petition requests the resubmission of the local improvement project for the construction of McKenzie between Douglas and Quadra.

The signatories, many of whom petitioned against the local improvement before, now say they want storm drains, curbs, gutters and boulevard improvements, with the promise of a concrete sidewalk on both sides of the road. They now agree to pay 70 cents a foot frontage each year for the next 20 years in order to get these improvements. Cost in them was estimated at $39,000 last fall.

OPEN DITCHES

Without the local improvement, they were in line for an asphalt road with open ditches, no sidewalks and no boulevard improvement.

Municipal engineer Neville Life welcomed the news of the forthcoming petition Wednesday night.

He said Saanich would be pleased to receive the request and that construction would proceed next year on a four-lane road "with the full treatment."

Mr. Groschevski said property-owners changed their minds because they favored sidewalks for children going to three nearby schools and for all residents of the area.

He also said if sewer connections were put in when the road was paved, it wouldn't have to be broken for sewers later on.

"This would lower our cost for sewers," he said.

ALL TO BENEFIT

"It will complement what is already in and will be extremely satisfactory to the municipality at large as well as to the property-owners on the street."

Yates Parking Garage

Entrance Will Be Exit To Prevent Bottleneck

Down will be up and up will go down at the civic parking garage on Yates Street next week.

The turn-around in the garage will take place this weekend in preparation for the following weekend's conversion of Yates and Fort Streets to one-way traffic routes.

City traffic engineer David Campbell said the conversion of Yates to a westbound traffic thoroughfare would make a bottleneck at the garage if the present entrance and exit were maintained.

To prevent a jam of cars, the present routing inside the garage is simply being reversed. From Monday morning, cars will enter on the west side and immediately turn left. They will leave by the old entrance.

Mr. Campbell said it had been decided that the planned conversion of Yates and Fort to one-way streets early on Sunday Sept. 22 would not take place if it should rain.

Rain would make it impossible for city crews to obliterate the present lane markings and stripe in new ones.

But, weather permitting, the switch will start at 6 a.m. Mr. Campbell said he hoped complete one-way traffic flow on both streets would be in effect by 1 p.m. and that both roads would be fully signed and traffic lights changed.

Ambulance Man Wins Certificate

Completion of an advanced course in emergency care and transportation of sick and injured persons has earned Derek Chow of Victoria a graduate certificate from the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons at Portland, Mr. Chow is employed by Victoria Ambulance Service Ltd., and is a member of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

SYSTEM OPPOSED

Thomas Paul, a 1968 graduate of the University of Victoria, will teach part-time, said Mr. Cox.

The free school project began in a series of August meetings by people opposed to the traditional school system.

Several similar schools have already sprung up in Vancouver and in eastern Canada.

Victoria Free School students will pay from $30 to $50 a month for tuition.

Voluntary Teachers Lauded

Seventy student teachers from the University of Victoria are performing two weeks' unpaid volunteer work in Greater Victoria and Saanich school districts.

Their pay is experience which they will put to use when classes begin at the university later this month.

The project, titled September Experience, was organized in co-operation with the university's faculty of education. Professor William Cross, assistant director of student teaching, coordinated the program.

JUNIOR HIGHS

Of the 70 students, 64 are in Greater Victoria schools. Several are in junior high schools, district superintendent Joseph Chitt and Wednesday.

Six have been assigned to Beaver Lake Elementary in Saanich school district.

Beaver Lake principal James Crow added:

"We'd sure like to hang onto them."

St. Louis Teachers

Aid for Students Parting Gesture

By BILL STAVDAL

When the Christian Brothers of Ireland closed St. Louis College last June and dispersed to new teaching jobs, they left a final gift to their students.

School Opens

Pupils Set Pace

The Victoria Free School will open Monday after beginning as an idea last month.

Three full-time teachers, 33 students and a reserve of part-time teachers will launch the experiment in a church hall at 520 Niagara.

The teenage students, described by teacher David Cox as mostly dropouts from public high schools, will study, debate and relax at their pleasure.

Teachers and students will be equals in everything but knowledge.

OWN SPEED

"The student will study what he wants to, at his own speed," said Mr. Cox of 1131 Clarke Road, who has just completed requirements for a bachelor's degree with an English major at the University of Victoria.

Mr. Cox said other teachers would be John Simpson, a graduate of the University of British Columbia, and Ezra Auerbach, an American undergraduate.

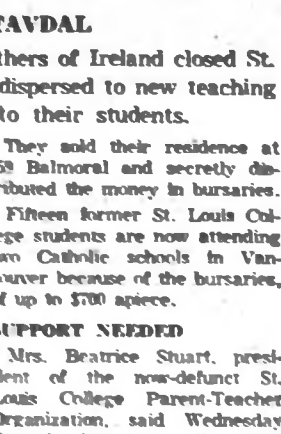

St. Louis has now become St. Andrew's Elementary School for boys and girls, open to Catholics and non-Catholics.

Distribution of the bursaries was done so secretly that not even St. Andrew's Cathedral Board, which administered St. Louis College, was aware of the gift.

"Wonderful men," said J. E. Redmond of 1138 Davie, whose two sons are now attending Vancouver College on bursaries. "They were only interested in helping the boys."

Two former St. Louis teachers, Brothers F. R. Furan and G. D. Fitzpatrick, are now teaching at Vancouver College.

A third, Brother William Fowler, is at St. Thomas More High School in Burnaby, where some of the Victoria boys are studying this winter.

Central Saanich

December Sewer Target

Central Saanich hopes to be able to present a referendum on its $1,700,000 sewer plan to its ratepayers sometime in December, according to Mayor Gordon Lee.

"We're making December our target, but the vote will not necessarily be in December. It is our intention to try to have it resolved in council before December so we can present a referendum then," he said.

However, if no financial assistance is available from federal and provincial governments, he said, the bylaw could be further delayed.

Although sewer plans were completed this year, he said, the bylaw was held up mostly because of the difficulty of borrowing money at reasonable rates of interest.

Delay in the development of the municipality, especially in the Brentwood area, has resulted from the holdup in the plans, Mayor Lee said.

There will be a new jog in the road for motorists travelling south on Rose Street from 9.30 a.m. Monday.

Traffic will be diverted to the new east-side lanes of the street on the stretch between Hillside and Bay. The diversion will likely last about one month while the west side of the new highway is being built.

Lakers Grab Two-Game Boxla Lead

OSHAWA (CP) — Peterborough Lakers took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven National Lacrosse Association eastern division semifinals Wednesday night, defeating Montreal Canadiens, 9-6.

The teams were tied, 2-2, at the end of the first period before Peterborough scored five goals in the second to take a 7-3 lead before 1,544 fans.

Joe Todd paced Peterborough with two goals. Single goals were scored by Harris Hunter, Larry Ferguson, Terry Downer, Bob Allan, Jim Grady, John Davis and Ken Henderson.

Montreal scorers were Brian Ahern, Ron Ray, Wayne Thompson, Jim Richardson, Joe Hare and Bill Castator.

Third game is scheduled for Peterborough Friday night.

Standouts were goaltenders Bob McCready of Montreal and Peterborough's Pat Baker. McCready stopped 46 shots while Baker blocked 31.

Roy was injured late in the third period after taking a heavy check from Jim Gooey and was helped off the floor.

Openers Tied

Both opening games of the North American Soccer League semi-finals ended in 1-1 ties Wednesday. Kansas City and San Diego played to the draw in their two-game, total-goal opener, as did Atlanta and Cleveland.

Roughrider Ball Carriers Sparking Leaders' Attack

TORONTO (CP) — Ball carriers George Reed and Bill McKinnis obviously deserve much of the credit for Saskatchewan Roughriders' first-place standing in the Western Football Conference.

Reed and McKinnis are the leading rushers in the WFC. Reed has accumulated 397 yards and scored three touchdowns running, both WFC highs. McKinnis is second with 465

EDMONTON (CP) — Little Charlie Fulton, starting only his second game at quarterback for the club, sparked Edmonton Eskimos to a 25-20 victory over favored Ottawa Rough Riders in a Canadian Football League interlocking game before 18,600 fans Wednesday night.

Fulton, a 21-year-old rookie from the University of Tennessee who led the Eskimos to an upset 10-8 triumph over Calgary Stampeders last Sunday, passed with authority to hand the eastern conference leaders their second loss in six starts.

LONG TOUCHDOWN PLAY He combined with end Larry Plancher, a Queen's University graduate, for the biggest play of Wednesday night's wide-open contest — an 85-yard pass-and-run touchdown play late in the third quarter.

Art Perkins, a standout on offense, and Fulton scored Edmonton's other touchdowns. Peter Kempf collected six points with two converts, a 22-yard field goal and a 33-yard single. Gerry Lebevre completed Edmonton's scoring with a booming 53-yard single with four seconds remaining in the game.

Vic Washington and Ed Scott scored touchdowns for Ottawa while Don Sutherland kicked two field goals and converted both touchdowns.

The victory moved Eskimos to within one point of second-place Calgary Stampeders in the Western Conference standings and five points ahead of B.C. Lions.

TIED FOR SECOND Sutherland, who leads the CFL in total career field goals with 85, earned eight points to move into a second-place tie with Tommy-Joe Coffey of Hamilton for the EFC scoring crown with 49 points.

Whit Tucker, also of Ottawa, tops the EFC in scoring with 54 points. The Ottawa flanker caught two passes Wednesday for 75 yards from quarterback Russ Jackson, hampered throughout the contest by a tough Edmonton defense.

Fulton, shaken up late in the fourth quarter when trapped by the Ottawa defense, completed 14 of 18 passes for 223 yards. The Eskimos also picked up 89 yards in rushing.

SLIGHT EDGE The Rough Riders' offence included 135 on passing and 224 from rushing. Jackson managed to complete only eight of 21 passes.

Ottawa had 15 first downs compared with Edmonton's 17, but the Riders made three fumbles and lost the ball once while the Eskimos did not commit a fumble.

Perfect Game in Local Debut

A Victoria resident just a month, Wally Weinberger, formerly of Kildmat, impressed his new Gibson teammates and Totem Travel rivals Wednesday by rolling a perfect 450 game on his first night of action in the Men's Commercial fivepin league at Gibson's Recreation. A 248 opener and 210 third game gave him a 308 series. Rolling on a nearby lane was Norm Goldie who bowled the last perfect game in league play on Dec. 12, 1966. — (Kinsmen).

Commission Extends Time For Appeals

VANCOUVER (CP) — The official 48-hour appeal period Wednesday expired for two jockeys and a horse owner charged by Exhibition Park stewards with race-fixing, but the British Columbia Racing Commission said the principles could appeal at a forthcoming commission hearing.

Glen MacDonald, commission chairman, said the three men involved will be allowed to appeal the stewards' recommendations up to and including the time the commission sits.

"We're looking for a date next week," Mr. MacDonald said, adding that the commission "never holds anybody" to the official 48-hour period in which to appeal.

Lifetime bans are sought by the stewards against jockey William H. Skuse, 29, of Richmond and horse-owner Ming Chong, a Vancouver grocery store operator. A five-year ban is recommended against jockey Dennis L. Terry, 28, also of Richmond.

WORLD BAN POSSIBLE The stewards, who brought the charges under the Rules and Regulations of Horse Racing, can levy fines of up to $200 and suspensions of up to a year — and only at their own track.

Since, in this case, they seek suspensions of more than a year, they will take the case to the B.C. Racing Commission. The commission can order the suspension to apply at any antiated track in the world.

The stewards findings against the three were announced Monday in a statement by Merv Peters, Exhibition Park's Director of Racing.

Mr. Peters said evidence against the three was gathered from races run on Aug. 22, 26 and 28.

SEVEN CHARGES Skuse faces a total of seven charges under the Rules and Regulations of Horse Racing. They include:

- Consulting with persons who have been convicted of criminal offenses;
- Questionable transactions on the turf;
- Conduct not in the best interest of racing;
- Engaging in any irregular betting transaction;
- Refusing to disclose contents of wearing apparel.

FACE FEWER CHARGES Terry was charged with breaking four rules, and Chong faces three charges, including one which states, "No person shall instruct, induce or connive with a jockey to ride a corrupt race."

Charges laid under the Rules and Regulations of Horse Racing are within the jurisdiction of the track stewards and the racing commission. Any criminal charges must be laid by police.

Tuna Wins Long Battle

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Following a grim battle of nearly eight hours, Mexico's Juan San Juan lost his bluefin Wednesday night when the line parted.

Two hours earlier, word had been radioed to the clubhouse at Cape St. Mary that San Juan's reel had given out and he was stubbornly holding the drum with one hand and trying to reel in the line with the other.

It was one of the longest battles in tuna-fishing history in San Juan's strike was the only one of the second day of the international tuna cup match.

Gibson Shades Dodgers To Equal Best Season

Acc righthander Bob Gibson of the National League leaders. St. Louis Cardinals, equalled his best previous season record Wednesday, beating the Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-4, for his 21st victory.

Gibson, who had failed in his bid for the 21st win on Friday in San Francisco, equalled the total he achieved in 1966 when he had a 21-12 record. He had won 20 games the previous season. A broken leg sidelined him eight weeks in 1967 and he finished with a 13-7 record.

DODGERS STUBBORN

The big pitcher had to struggle to victory against the Dodgers, allowing 11 hits as Los Angeles fought back with two runs in the fifth inning and one in the ninth after St. Louis had taken a 5-1 lead in the third inning.

Gibson has lost seven games this season. The win was only the second in eight games for the slumping Cardinals and with the help of Atlanta's 5-1 victory over San Francisco, Gibson reduced the Cardinals' magic number to four.

MARICHAL VICTIMIZED

John Marichal, the National League's winningest pitcher with 25 victories, was the Braves' victim at Atlanta, suffering his eighth loss on Hank Aaron's 27th home run — a two-run blow.

Marichal, who was on the winning end of Jerees in San Francisco when he didn't pitch against Gibson on Friday, before picking up his 25th win in the second game of the double-header against the Cardinals, gave up 10 hits.

Pat Jarvis gained his 16th victory with a four-hitter.

REDS BREAK TIE

Cincinnati Reds broke a three-place tie with Chicago Cubs by sweeping a doubleheader from Houston Astros, who fell out of an eighth-place tie with Los Angeles, 5-1 and 11-4.

The Cubs and Ferguson Jenkins were blanked by the New York Mets, who caught the Astros with a 1-0 victory.

Rookie Jim McAndrew, a hard-luck loser in several other starts, picked up his second win against seven losers with a two-hitter and some last inning relief help from Chris Short.

Jenkins, now 17-14, gave up five hits.

TWO MORE HOMERS Philadelphia Phillies split a doubleheader with Pittsburgh Pirates, winning the first game, 8-6, in 12 innings before losing, 4-6.

In the American League, Detroit Tigers moved a step closer to clinching the pennant by dumping the California Angels, 8-2, as Willie Horton hit his 34th and 35th home runs.

Acc righthander Bob Gibson of the National League leaders. St. Louis Cardinals, equalled his best previous season record Wednesday, beating the Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-4, for his 21st victory.

Gibson, who had failed in his bid for the 21st win on Friday in San Francisco, equalled the total he achieved in 1966 when he had a 21-12 record. He had won 20 games the previous season. A broken leg sidelined him eight weeks in 1967 and he finished with a 13-7 record.

DODGERS STUBBORN

The big pitcher had to struggle to victory against the Dodgers, allowing 11 hits as Los Angeles fought back with two runs in the fifth inning and one in the ninth after St. Louis had taken a 5-1 lead in the third inning.

Gibson has lost seven games this season. The win was only the second in eight games for the slumping Cardinals and with the help of Atlanta's 5-1 victory over San Francisco, Gibson reduced the Cardinals' magic number to four.

MARICHAL VICTIMIZED

John Marichal, the National League's winningest pitcher with 25 victories, was the Braves' victim at Atlanta, suffering his eighth loss on Hank Aaron's 27th home run — a two-run blow.

Marichal, who was on the winning end of Jerees in San Francisco when he didn't pitch against Gibson on Friday, before picking up his 25th win in the second game of the double-header against the Cardinals, gave up 10 hits.

Pat Jarvis gained his 16th victory with a four-hitter.

REDS BREAK TIE

Cincinnati Reds broke a three-place tie with Chicago Cubs by sweeping a doubleheader from Houston Astros, who fell out of an eighth-place tie with Los Angeles, 5-1 and 11-4.

The Cubs and Ferguson Jenkins were blanked by the New York Mets, who caught the Astros with a 1-0 victory.

Rookie Jim McAndrew, a hard-luck loser in several other starts, picked up his second win against seven losers with a two-hitter and some last inning relief help from Chris Short.

Jenkins, now 17-14, gave up five hits.

TWO MORE HOMERS Philadelphia Phillies split a doubleheader with Pittsburgh Pirates, winning the first game, 8-6, in 12 innings before losing, 4-6.

In the American League, Detroit Tigers moved a step closer to clinching the pennant by dumping the California Angels, 8-2, as Willie Horton hit his 34th and 35th home runs.

Post-Yalta Talks Turned Down By de Gaulle

PARIS (LAT) — A check of the records at the U.S. Embassy in Paris has turned up a document which shows conclusively that an invitation to President de Gaulle to attend the Yalta Conference in 1945 was discussed by Harry Hopkins, with the then President Roosevelt's envoy.

French foreign minister, Georges Bidault, and turned down. Bidault was quoted Tuesday by the newspaper Libre Belgique as saying that "no such discussion ever occurred — Hopkins never hinted at any French participation in the Yalta Conference."

However, the embassy records contain a cable from the then American Ambassador to France, Jefferson Caffery, to the state department in Washington dated Feb. 2, 1945, which puts the opposite light on Bidault's recollection; as well as de Gaulle's account of how he was "summoned" to meet Roosevelt after the Yalta

Conference. The cable was brief and reads in full: "Please repeat to Harry Hopkins as rapidly as possible."

Gaulle replied that he would be delighted to meet President Roosevelt before he returns to the U.S.A. He asked only that he be notified at as early a date as possible about the time and place of the meeting.

"Bidault tells me also that it is his opinion now that it would be better not to invite de Gaulle to join this Big Three Conference."

THURSDAY

- St. Beaver Kiwanis, Strathcona, 7:30 a.m.
- Rotary Club of Victoria, Empress, 12:10 p.m.
- Kiwanis Club of Oak Bay, Oak Bay Beach Hotel, 6:15 p.m.
- Y's Men's Club, YMCA club room, 6:30 p.m.
- Evening Optimist Club, Ingham, 6:30 p.m.
- Canadian Authors' Association, Douglas Building cafeteria, 8 p.m.

A Victoria teen band, The Hidden Fifth, will donate its services Friday at a benefit dance aiding the building fund of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

The 8 p.m. dance will be held at the Club Tango, 1037 View.

The Victoria branch of the CMHA is now housed in an old residence at 2316 Lee Avenue. A major part of its service is rehabilitation of former mental patients.

The association will need better quarters when the new mental hospital on Lee Avenue is completed, said Joan Dunkin, executive secretary.

Censor Attacks Galileo Movie

ROME (AP) — Italy's film censor have set off a squabble by banning a burning-at-the-stake scene from a movie about the 17th-century physicist Galileo. The entire film was banned for anyone under 18.

Communist and left-wing newspapers suggest there is secret interference from the Roman Catholic Church in setting film standards.

Galileo was brought to trial by the Inquisition in 1633 for "vehement suspicion of heresy" and was found guilty of having "held and taught" the doctrine of Copernicus that the earth goes around the sun. He renounced the theory to escape the stake.

Several scenes of the film show the burning at the stake of Giordano Bruno, one of Galileo's contemporaries, condemned for heresy.

Lilliana Cavani, one of Italy's leading film directors, upon learning that her film was banned to all persons under 18, decided she would appeal the censorship decision.

The bucksters describe Petulia as "the uncommon movie," and for once they are right. It is a most uncommon movie, though the technique used in the filming is getting more common all the time.

This production now playing the Haida is a jigsaw puzzle of events in which the director fits together snippets in the lives of a doctor and a new bride in search of an affair.

SECOND BEST

Julie Christie is the bride and George C. Scott plays the doctor. Miss Christie comes off second-best in the film. She has gone back to ignoring characterization as she did in Darling and is just Julie Christie.

She did much better in Far From the Madding Crowd, when there were signs that she could get outside herself and into a role.

EVEN BETTER

What makes Petulia worth seeing is the performance of George C. Scott. He does a fine job of underplaying and thereby stresses the show.

He was excellent in The Firm Flaming Man but this time he is even better. Sooner or later a director is going to wake up to Mr. Scott's potential and give him a really good script to work with.

GLUED BACK

The film appears to have been shot in the normal sequence of chronological events and then sliced into bits in the cutting room and glued back at random. The effect is interesting but at times a bit disconcerting.

In common with a number of recent films, the color photography is excellent and the camera angles interesting and stimulating. Still, all in all, it is George C. Scott who saves the day.

Comic Rare Breed

Owen Hester is a very funny man. Not only that, he is one of a rare breed—the standup comedian who does the whole vaudeville routine of playing several instruments, singing and dancing.

FUNNY ROUTINE

Mr. Hester has a particularly funny routine which he uses as an encore to his first show. Be sure to clap loud and long so that he does it.

After hiring an "assistant" from the audience, he goes on to demonstrate how easy it is, even for the uninitiated, to impersonate the Beatles.

TAP DANCER

He also dances a comedy tap routine in the Ray Bolger style that is a winner all the way. Often when a comedian does so much he ends up doing most of it badly, but this is not the case with Owen Hester. He will be at the Old Forge for two weeks.

The things he does do very well and certainly deserves the applause he got Tuesday night. He does two different shows a night.—W.D.T.

Blacktop Bows to Boughs

"It takes a long time to grow a tree," Saanich municipal planner Thomas Loney said Tuesday and explained it was Saanich policy for surveyors mapping new roads to chart all mature trees. Municipal roads and sidewalks will be "bent a bit" to try and save them. This old arbutus on Hillcrest was too beautiful to cut down, and road was divided to save it. — (William E. John)

Way Paved For Road Safety Grant

A grant of $2,400 appears to be in the offing from Greater Victoria municipalities to start a road safety program in the area.

The grant was recommended Wednesday by the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee. It will depend on individual councils agreeing to pay their share.

The grant was requested by the Greater Victoria Safety Council, a new organization formed to promote safer driving. City Manager Dennis Young said the council hoped to support future operations from private and corporate donations, but the civic contribution was being sought "to get it off the ground."

Dam Workers

Sooke Sees Class Jam

Spurred by a coming influx of construction workers' children, the Sooke school board has begun planning a new building referendum early in 1969.

The Jordan River dam and power project will bring in an estimated maximum of 140 youngsters, B.C. Hydro told the board Tuesday.

District superintendent Ernest Hundman told trustees that the district will likely get another 400-pupil enrolment increase next fall, the same increase as registered last week.

SIX MORE

He estimated the district will need six new elementary classrooms in September, 1969, plus additional space in the high schools.

"You'll have to hold a referendum early in the new year," said Mr. Hundman. He termed the need for new construction "crucial."

Surplus funds from the last building program can be applied to the new projects, he suggested.

The children of workers at the Jordan River project will be educated in Sooke.

B.C. Hydro advised the board that the work force will rise from about 50 in early 1969 to a peak of about 400 in 1970.

An estimated 80 children will need accommodation in early 1969, rising to about 140 in 1970, said B.C. Hydro.

In other business, the board approved a proposal by the district superintendent to have Grade 11 construction students at Edward Milne High School build cabinets and shelves for a new addition.

AIDES HIRED

The addition was built without milwork because of government austerity regulations.

Trustees approved the hiring of the district's first teacher aides, plus a library aide.

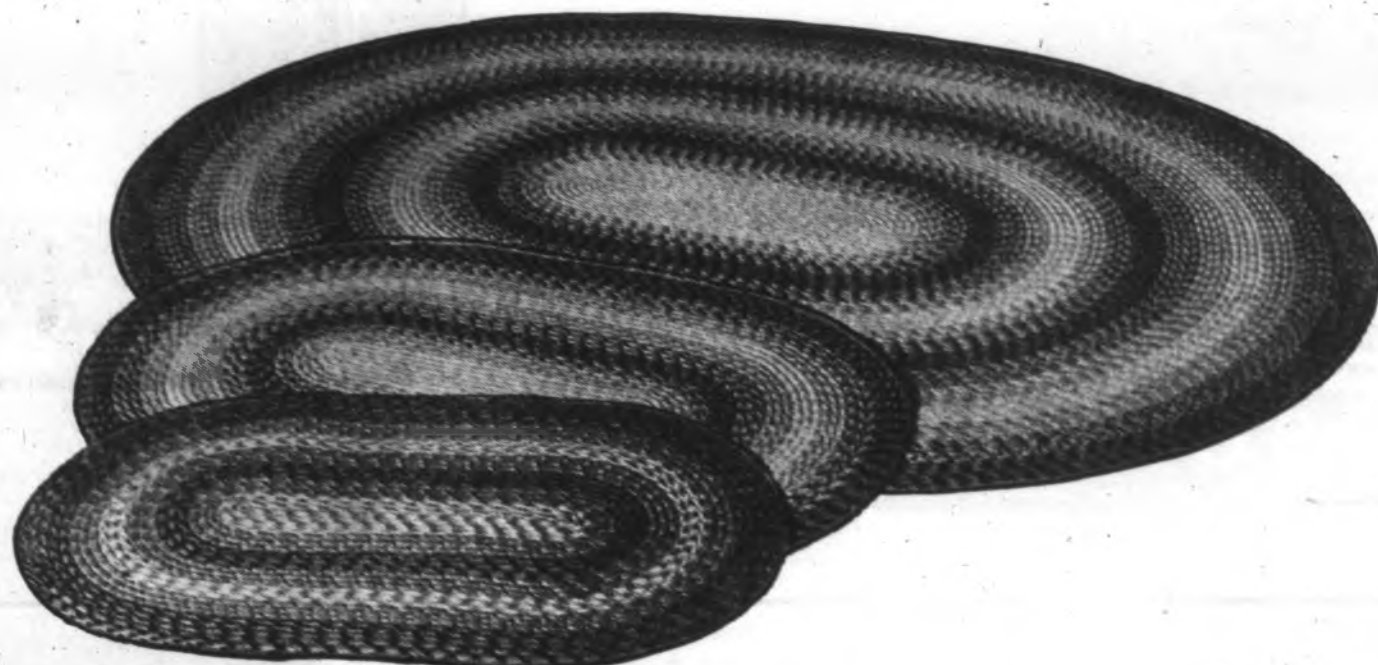

The teacher aides will serve at Belmont High, Dogwood Special School, and Sooke Elementary. The library aide has been appointed to Savary Elementary.

Diefenbaker

Commons TV Job Declined

OTTAWA (Special)—The privately-owned CTV television network Wednesday confirmed rumors that it tried to get John Diefenbaker as its star commentator for the opening of Parliament today.

The former prime minister was intrigued with the idea but the negotiations failed. Despite a fee described as "attractively fat," Diefenbaker didn't think it would be proper for a leading parliamentarian to "go commercial."

The Conservative warhorse favors the televising of Parliamentary debates, but with no sponsors and no pay to either the network or the MPs.

John D:

School Situation Discrimination

OTTAWA (CP)—John Diefenbaker said Wednesday the St. Leonard school situation in Montreal represents a kind of discrimination that cannot be accepted in Canada.

"It is not consonant with national unity," he told reporters on the eve of the opening of the nation's 28th Parliament today.

He said he hopes that when a delegation of English-speaking and immigrant parents comes to Ottawa today to see Prime Minister Trudeau, "the prime minister will speak out with the authority and prestige that come from his position and with the conviction behind the beliefs that he has expressed."

BEST WEAPON

This kind of moral influence is the most effective federal weapon against the "serious situation" created by attempts to establish French-only school instruction for first-graders in the St. Leonard district of Montreal, 1968.

Parents Told:

Ottawa Trek Blind Alley

MONTREAL (CP)—The president of the suburban St. Leonard Mouvement pour l'Integration Scolaire—the movement which wants French-only classes in the municipality—said Wednesday English-speaking parents are being "led up a blind alley" by marching on Ottawa today.

Gerard Lapine said the 4,000-odd parents who are expected to meet with Prime Minister Trudeau to seek his help in maintaining bilingual classes in St. Leonard schools "aren't too familiar with Canada and don't realize they're barking up the wrong tree."

OTHER SIDE

"Once again they refuse to face facts or listen to the other side of the story," he said.

Lapine said the MIS had been founded when it was realized that bilingual classes—a unique experiment in the province—resulted in French-speaking students who were badly adapted to French-language secondary schools.

NOT SEPARATIST

Lapine said the movement was not separatist-oriented. He said the 5,000-member organization represented the French-speaking parents of St. Leonard and "no politics are involved. We're just parents worried about our children getting a second rate education because of an experiment in bilingualism that has failed."

About 1,500 English-speaking school children were kept at home by their parents when the French-only first grade classes started last Wednesday.

Federal View

Medicare Summit Not on Calendar

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau has turned down a bid by provincial premiers for a summit conference on the medical care insurance program.

However, he told a news conference Wednesday, all major federal-provincial joint programs are being reviewed by officials of both levels of government and he hopes that later this year the federal and provincial finance ministers will meet.

Trudeau said there won't be another conference on medical care insurance as such.

The provincial premiers telegraphed him last July expressing "deep and broad concern" about the financial implications of medical care in view of increasing costs in existing plans.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau called on Premier Johnson Wednesday to "take a firm hand" and live up to his commitments to protect English-language rights in Quebec.

"At his news conference, the prime minister criticized the move toward unilingual French schools in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard and implied that it was happening because of lack of control by Johnson."

NOT IN LINE

"Mr. Johnson unfortunately now is not apparently perceiving Quebec to keep his ministers and government in line," he said.

"I'm looking forward to the day when he will take a firm hand and live up to these commitments."

The prime minister had just finished quoting statements by Johnson to the February constitutional conference saying the rights of Quebec's English-speaking population were not in danger.

MOVE SCORED

Trudeau spoke at some length about the situation in St. Leonard, describing its move toward French-only schools as "disrupting, disturbing and retrograde."

He said he hopes to meet with representatives of English-language parents who plan a 4,000-strong march on Parliament Hill today to protest the action of the town's Catholic school commission.

About half of St. Leonard's population is French-speaking. Only about 5 per cent speak English as a mother tongue and the remainder is largely of Italian origin.

RIGHTS ASPECT

Trudeau said the federal government has no authority to overrule the decisions taken in St. Leonard but is concerned about the human rights aspect of the case.

It made him feel that a constitutional bill of rights guaranteeing that the two official languages would be put on a "more or less equal footing" in all parts of the country, was more necessary than before.

Peanut Butter Cookies

1 cup chunk-style peanut butter
1/2 cup butter
2 teaspoons vanilla
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup honey
2 eggs
2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
Cream together the peanut butter, butter and vanilla, using rotary beater on medium speed. Gradually add honey and sugar; continue beating. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat well after each addition. Beat until light and fluffy. Add flour and soda, sifted together, and beat on low speed only until blended. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto cookie sheets. Bake at (375 F) 10 to 12 minutes. Remove to cooling rack. Makes about 8 dozen cookies.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: You recently published a letter from a woman who said she would rather starve to death than return to housework.

The gal listed several complaints—principally the extra things she had to do which were not housework, such as wash the car, repair the plumbing, shampoo the dog, mow the lawn, shovel the snow and so on. You were most sympathetic and invited your readers to present the "other side of the story"—if there is one.

Well, there is one, and here it is.

Two years ago I went to the expense of bringing a so-called housekeeper over here from another country. Within 60 days, she had boiled the plastic egg timer with the eggs, tried to straighten the curved grapefruit knife with my pliers, put the rubber bathtub mat in the clothes dryer and ruined the motor, boiled a leg of lamb in deep water in the oven, and polished my silver service with steel wool.

Easier and Cheaper

I could go on, but I think you have the picture. Thanks in advance for printing the "other side."—EASIER TO DO IT MYSELF.

Dear Easier: Yes, and cheaper, too. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a mother of three active children and I seem to be working my tail off from morning till night. I am not complaining. I love my husband, my kids and my home. My problem is my sister-in-law.

Lizette has three children whose ages are the same as mine—all under five. Four days a week Lizette drops her kids off at my house while she does charity work, and gets her picture in the paper for being on this committee and that committee.

I think it is wonderful that Lizette is interested in community affairs, but I feel she is taking advantage of me. Not only do I bathe, feed and care for her kids, but she hands me her grocery list and says, "While you're getting your groceries, please get mine."

What do you think of this?

—LIZETTE'S FATS.

Dear Fats: I think Lizette has found herself a free babysitter, a grocery shopper and all-around chum. But the question isn't what I think, it's what you think, and apparently you think it's fine or you'd have done something about it.

Gifts Belong to Wife

Dear Ann Landers: I married an immature, hot-tempered, lazy, lying scoundrel against the advice of my family, friends, my clergyman and you. After six months of hellish fighting and being called every name under the sun, I told him (through the bandages) that I wanted a trial separation—three months.

The three months were over last week. I realize now that I must have been crazy to have married that loon and crazier still to have put up with his cruelty. I am filing for divorce tomorrow.

The question: Should I return the wedding gifts? Some of them are still in boxes—ALIVE AT LAST.

Dear Alive: The wedding gifts belong to the wife unless she makes a special agreement with her husband as part of the divorce settlement.

Action Resumes At Church Club

The social club of St. Luke's Church has resumed meetings for the 1968-1969 season. Meetings will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in the parish hall.

Lieutenant-Governor Nicholson will attend a reception this afternoon to be given Jack W. Bayne, manager of the Royal Trust Co. The reception, to be held in the Union Club, is in honor of Kenneth A. White, executive vice-president of Royal Trust, visiting here from the east.

Music lovers take note. CBU radio (680) will broadcast the Great Lakes Suite at 8 tonight.

What makes this specially interesting to Victorians is that the music was written by John Beckwith, a native son, now living in Toronto.

Words to the music were taken from a book of poems written by Dr. James Reaney, poet, author and professor of English at the University of Western Ontario in London. John and Dr. Reaney have collaborated many times in other musical works.

Dr. Reaney is on a year's sabbatical and he and his wife are currently living in Victoria.

The Great Lakes Suite will be the last number on the program, which ends at 10.

Some well-known names in the Canadian music world will take part in the performance. They are John Bayne, baritone; Lois Marshall, soprano; John Newmark, pianist; Rafael Masella, clarinetist, (What a lovely word.) and Walter Joachim, cellist.

John Beckwith recently earned his full professorship from the music department of the University of Victoria. His wife Pam is still directing and reading plays for CBC. John is the son of Mrs. R. A. Beckwith of Lee Avenue.

A Battle of Britain Memorial Service conducted by Very Rev. Brian Whitlow will be held in Christ Church Cathedral at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Members of the Victoria area and up-Island Royal Canadian Air Cadet squadrons will be in attendance and will march past the saluting base outside the church immediately after the service, then continue to the Cenotaph in Parliament Square for the placing of memorial wreaths.

The salute will be taken during the march-past by Squadron Leader W. Davis, AFC, CD, president of the Air Force Officers' Association of Vancouver Island.

Members of the public are invited to attend both the cathedral service and the ceremony in Parliament Square.

Major E. A. Wison, who recently retired from the Canadian Forces, and his family are back in Victoria, living at 2276 Central Avenue. They have been staying with Mrs. Wison's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Powell, on Monterey. Both Wison girls, Heather and Shelley, are going to Monterey school.

There were a lot of parties given for Clarice Haddock before her marriage to Eric Boak.

Mrs. David Lawson and Mrs. L. L. Pink invited 23 guests to a coffee party and shower at the Lawson home on St. Charles Street. The mothers of the principals, Mrs. J. Courtney Haddock and Mrs. E. E. G. Boak, poured coffee.

Mrs. Ronald London also gave a coffee party and shower for Clarice. There were 26 guests and Mrs. Haddock and Mrs. Boak again poured.

Mrs. Charles Cox was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Burke Cuppige when she gave an evening kitchen shower for the bride.

It was an afternoon tea and shower when Mrs. Cyril Williams entertained at her Larkdown Road home. Stephanie Williams assisted her mother and guests were Mrs. Haddock, Mrs. Boak, Mrs. George Duck, Mrs. Victor Griffin, Miss Diane Boak, Mrs. Dave Lawson, Mrs. William Trewhelme, Mrs. Linair Pink and Mrs. Darcy Haddock.

Ankles Need Exercise With 'Balloon'

By MARY SUE MILLER

Heavy ankles just can't get by the stocking-caught eye. And, if anything, stockings are more eye-catching this autumn than before.

That makes slimming a heavy ankle more than desirable. A choice routine follows:

Stretch out, back down on floor. Quickly swing right leg straight up and point toes toward ceiling. Now pretend to juggle a large balloon at end of big toe. First circle balloon by rotating ankle in clockwise direction; then anti-clockwise. Next bounce balloon forward and backward by flexing ankle.

Throughout, be sure to keep leg in position, with knee straight and hips on floor. Continue for one minute and repeat with left leg. Strive for increased speed and agility.

At this point you may wonder why instructions do not call for the use of an actual balloon. Well, you'd spend so much time retrieving it, you would never get a proper workout. If you're of a realistic turn of mind, however, you can tie a balloon to your big toe—leaving an inch of space between the two—and then juggle away.

Something else—take off any overweight. Losing weight helps to slim the ankles. It can also win a smaller shoe for you.

Debut-Hater Prefers The Garage

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

Marion Oates Leiter doesn't really approve of debuts and debutantes. That's why she gave a dance in the garage for her tall, dark-haired daughter Victoria in Newport, R.I.

The garage, fortunately, was big enough for eight cars. For the party the inside was camouflaged with white trellises. It led into the big tent. Everything, including the tent poles, was decorated in red, white, and black. Guests sat on white Victorian chairs at tables covered with red cloths and centred with bowls of red roses.

The milk bar was set up in the tool shed.

Victoria, who made her first public appearance at a benefit fashion show at Southampton last summer, wore a white silk organdie and lace dress by Nando Sarmá. It had long sleeves and a ruffle around the high neckline and cuffs.

Marion Oates Leiter's dress by Jean Louis was deep pink chiffon with a jewelled top.

It was a full weekend in Newport. Gay Manice, daughter of Mrs. Hayward Manice, had her coming-out party and a dinner party preceded Victoria's dance.

Among the familiar faces on the scene were: Mrs. Wiley Buchanan in long pale pink chiffon with pink embroidered empire bodice by Elizabeth Arden; Mrs. Bradford Walker wearing Oscar de La Renta's navy and white organdie, polka-dotted with a ruffled hemline; Mrs. Mario Lobo in a belted long white crepe by Patrick de Barentzen. A ruffle wraps around the neck and falls to the hemline on one side.

Others included Mrs. Messmore Kendall who wore George Halley's bronze and orange plaid organdie with the extra-full skirt and tiny bodice; Mrs. Peter McBean in a one shoulder — one sleeve pale blue and peach print organdie by Givenchy; and Mrs. Tuck Guest in Oscar de La Renta's aquamarine blue coin-dot organdie, belted with wide white grosgrain.

Toppy Taylor was escorted by her new beau Capt. Douglas Davidson, who was best man at Lynda Bird's wedding. She's wearing Oscar's navy and white polka-dotted organdie, too.

One of the most elegant deliveries in history was made when Kenneth Lane arrived with Jo Hughes and Victoria Leiter's evening dresses and boxes of costume jewelry for one and all, and wide red ribbon for Charlie Leiter, the grey poodle.

Bras Later

This Tears It: Paper Undies!

NEW YORK (AP)—London dealt a low blow Tuesday to the American lingerie industry with so-called paper panties for women.

At a showing in a restaurant, a modest miss in a black suit peeled away her skirt and revealed to a surprised audience a minimal paper coverage.

Technically, the product is not paper, but rather an inexpensive, produced, non-woven viscose rayon. The bikini strips were introduced by J. P. Stevens and Co. as a forerunner to other disposable under products in the making. These have been a fashion rage in Britain since 1967, when French designer Ivan Goujon introduced them.

Sheets of the male variety actually were the first product of the British organization. However, these as well as bras for ladies — which a J. P. Stevens official said require more engineering — will come to the American market later.

The parts are sold much like disposable diapers, and indeed resemble them. They are packed individually in polyethylene packages the size of cigarette packs at 15 cents a pair and will be available soon in dispensers in stores.

They are not for fat people. Anyone beyond a size 18 explodes the product.

Hamilton

By TRUDY KEMP

The year was 1938 and the young Vienna-born girl had just completed a three-year apprenticeship in dressmaking and designing. She was looking forward to establishing herself in her chosen profession in Vienna.

A madman in Germany was soon to change young Ise Gerstl's life and the lives of millions throughout the world.

On March 12 of that fateful year Adolf Hitler and his Nazi storm troopers marched into Austria. Eight months later the 18-year-old Ise found herself on a transport heading for England.

"It wasn't too hard to leave Austria at the beginning of the occupation as long as you had a permit," recalled Ise. Just about the time Ise Gerstl, who is now Mrs. Gwain Hamilton, had received her permit to leave her country, donations had been received from people in England and Holland to pay the transport fares for 600 refugee children.

Ise stayed with them for after the children until they reached their destination. About 200 children were left in Amsterdam and the remaining went on to England.

She stayed with them for about eight months until all the children were placed. She then went to Oxford to work at housework which she was required to do under her entry permit. When the year was up she applied for a work permit and soon resumed her dressmaking career.

It was at Oxford that Ise met her husband, Victoria-born Gwain Hamilton, who was at that time stationed with the Canadian 1st Division, Saskatoon Light Infantry. They were married in 1940.

She was kept busy all during the war with her dressmaking. In 1941 Gwain Hamilton returned to Canada and was stationed at Camp Borden. His wife came shortly after and lived at Barrie, Ont. Following the end of the war the couple moved to Regina where Mr. Hamilton went to work as a cub reporter on the Leader Post.

Five years later they moved to Winnipeg, and prior to moving to Victoria about 16 months ago Gwain Hamilton was public information officer with the Manitoba government. He is the author of In the Beginning, a story of Manitoba's past. He received the Margaret McWilliams medal for historical writing in 1965.

Ise still kept on with her dressmaking and designing. She had her own shop in Regina and also taught dressmaking and tailoring at night school there, and later in Winnipeg. Last fall she taught dressmaking at adult evening school and Mt. View High School, and will be doing so again this year.

This is in addition to running her own shop here and caring for her home and family. The Hamiltons have two sons, Alan, 13, and Zackery, 10, at home, and a daughter, Mrs. Michael (Margaret) Harris living in Winnipeg.

Ise's new shop in Victoria is located on Broughton Street. She employs six full-time dressmakers and two girls on part time. They are from different countries and all received their apprenticeship training in Europe.

"We can speak 11 languages among us in the shop," she said. Ise and her co-workers are busy designing and sewing numerous ensembles, including everything from casual wear, suits, coats, dresses, evening wear, and wedding gowns, for a fashion show she is staging for the Catholic Women's League of St. Andrew's Cathedral. The show will be held from 8:30 to 9 p.m. Oct. 10 at the War Amputees' Hall, Oak Bay Avenue.

But Only for Year

Hitler Made Her Drop Stitches

She was kept busy all during the war with her dressmaking.

In 1941 Gwain Hamilton returned to Canada and was stationed at Camp Borden. His wife came shortly after and lived at Barrie, Ont.

Following the end of the war the couple moved to Regina where Mr. Hamilton went to work as a cub reporter on the Leader Post.

Five years later they moved to Winnipeg, and prior to moving to Victoria about 16 months ago Gwain Hamilton was public information officer with the Manitoba government. He is the author of In the Beginning, a story of Manitoba's past. He received the Margaret McWilliams medal for historical writing in 1965.

Ise still kept on with her dressmaking and designing. She had her own shop in Regina and also taught dressmaking and tailoring at night school there, and later in Winnipeg.

Last fall she taught dressmaking at adult evening school and Mt. View High School, and will be doing so again this year.

This is in addition to running her own shop here and caring for her home and family. The Hamiltons have two sons, Alan, 13, and Zackery, 10, at home, and a daughter, Mrs. Michael (Margaret) Harris living in Winnipeg.

Commons Shows Men's Fashions

LONDON (Reuters)—It had to happen some day.

After 700 years a fashion show was held at the stately House of Commons Tuesday.

Male models sauntered through the halls of Westminster, all to aid a British export drive to woo American customers.

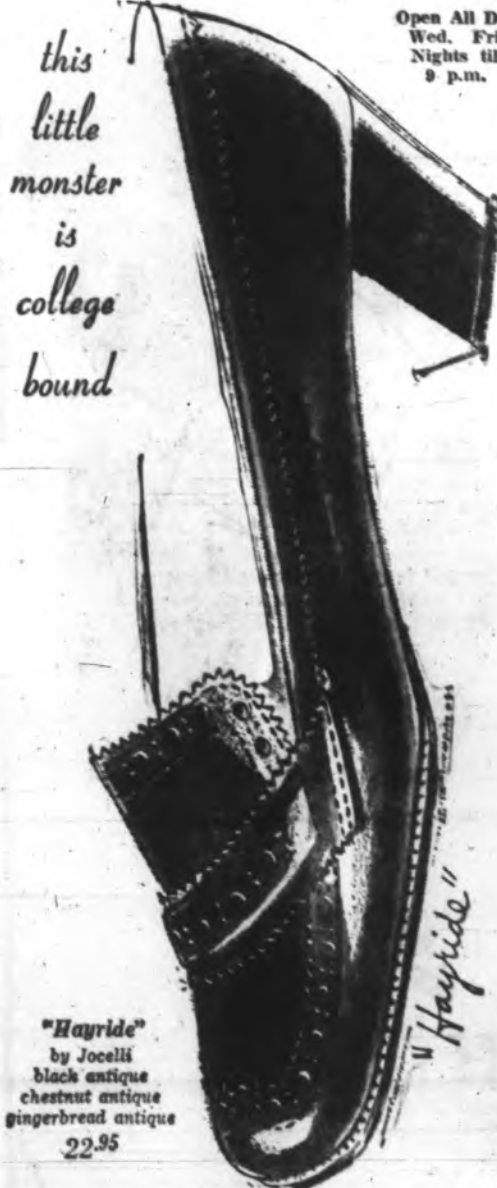

Parliament's first-ever fashion show featured a menswear range designed for the American market by 24-year-old Gail Ansell—the only woman in Britain who designs exclusively for men.

The clothes will be flown to New York for showings next month and will appear in American shops in the spring.

Her export collection features waisted slimline suits with zipper, big lapels, diagonally cut pockets and fastening and matching ties and shirts.

ERMA BOMBECK Drives Point Home

Trautomatic Experience

This is the third in a 10-part series excerpted from the book At Wit's End by Erma Bombeck.

I recently became interested in the story of a London housewife who was at odds with English automobile manufacturers over the low position of steering wheels for expectant mothers who have to drive a car.

The automobile manufacturers retaliated with "Why should pregnant women have to drive at all?" which is the type of answer you'd expect from a "bachelor engineer" whose mommy told him she got him with green stamps!

Actually, pregnant women don't have to drive cars. They could ride motorcycles side-saddle, strap their feet to two skateboards, or raise their umbrellas and think Mary Poppins, but the fact remains automobiles are an intricate part of a woman's life and to give them up for six months or so is like going back to nesting in a rocking chair for nine months.

I know of what I speak. Before American cars were equipped with tilt-away steering wheels, I had a traumatic experience that I have not been able to relate to more than thirty or forty thousand of my most intimate friends.

I was going into my 11th month of pregnancy (the doctor and I disagreed on this point) and had gone to the store to purchase half a gallon of ice cream and a loaf of bread. The car seat was back as far as it would go, which created a small problem. My feet no longer reached the brake pedal or the accelerator, so I had to crouch. When I crouched, my vision was impaired and I had to hang my head out of the no-draft. When I did this, I hit things.

No matter, I got to the store and parked the car, nose in, and made my exit without incident. However, on my return I noticed I had been hemmed in on both sides by parked cars.

I eased open the door a crack and proceeded to stuff myself into the car, stomach first. However, I became wedged between the arm rest of the door and the steering wheel. I could not go forward or backward! Now, try that on for laughs. My stomach was stuck and my ice cream was melting.

People began to stand around in curious mobs. Quickly I pulled backward, releasing me from the front seat. To save face, I nonchalantly opened the back door of the car and slid in like a guest.

Now, to get to the front seat. Bent from the waist, I faced the rear of the car and tried rolling over the top of the front seat. The ashtray tore a hole in my bread wrapper.

Humiliated, I plopped down on the seat to think. What do you do when you go to the supermarket manager and ask him to announce over his microphone that the black station wagon bearing licence plates — is blocking a stomach?

I licked the sticky ice cream off my fingers and decided to give it one more try. I'd back into the front seat. I was doing fine until another fat part of me made contact with the horn. A small child pointed and said "Mommy, is that woman sitting on her horn going to have a baby?" Tears welled in my eyes. "Don't be ridiculous, kid! I'm carrying it for a dear friend."

Mideast Near Brink Again

From UPI

Egypt and Israel Wednesday accused each other of violating the cease-fire along the Suez Canal where both sides appeared to be anticipating new major attacks. Semi-official Egyptian sources said tensions had built up to the brink of a "violent flareup any minute."

UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser broke off a health cure in Alexandria to return to Cairo for a meeting with his cabinet on the potentially explosive situation.

PEACE PURSUIT

In New York, the United States warned the Security Council that any further violence in the Middle East "could gravely jeopardize not only the cease fire but the all-too-precious pursuit of peace" in the region.

U.S. ambassador George Ball said the Security Council had "delayed too long" in reconciling Israel and its Arab neighbors and endorsed Ethiopian suggestions that more use be made of UN cease-fire teams to see that violations did not escalate into another full-scale war.

NO DATE

The Security Council, however, adjourned without taking any action and without setting a date for its next session on the new Middle East crisis.

In Jerusalem, Israeli military officials said Egyptian batteries fired two salvos early Wednesday on Israeli positions near Port Tewfik at the southern end of the Canal. Later, they said, the Egyptians opened light arms fire across the canal in the same area.

Churches Unite To Curb Glasgow Crime

GLASGOW (CP) — Tuggerly in Glasgow, Britain's toughest city, is at the stage where the Roman Catholic and Presbyterian churches have joined old differences to unite in a drive to curb teenage lawlessness.

The Roman Catholics announced Tuesday night they are rushing in a task force of 50 priests from all over Britain to lead 250 local clergy in a six-week mission among young people of the Glasgow lawlessness.

LONG WAY

The Church of Scotland issued a joint statement calling on their adults for greater participation in youth work and community affairs to bring down the growing wave of violence.

"It went a long way finally to dispose of the myth that the source of lawlessness is religious rivalry," said Dr. Ian Henderson, professor of systematic theology at Glasgow University.

MINOR PART

A bare-knuckled manifestation of the rivalry comes periodically as Roman Catholic and Protestant supporters of Glasgow's Celtic and Rangers engage in ritualistic shill-crackings when the soccer teams meet. Riots have been regular. But that's only a minor part of the Glasgow lawlessness. The city has been inundated in recent years by a flood of violence, much of it seemingly motiveless muggings and beatings, and a large portion created by gang fights.

There were 21 murders among the city's population of 1,100,000 last year, about triple the per capita rate for London.

The Roman Catholic "communion" effort—expected to be followed by Protestant action—is the first of its kind in Britain. The 50-priest team that will descend on the city in October consists of specialists in youth work who hope to train a battery of youngsters to go out as apostles for peace among their contemporaries.

Court Grants 12 Actions

Divorce court opened in Victoria Monday when 12 actions for divorce were granted. All petitions were filed under the old law which allows divorce only on grounds of proven adultery.

A number of petitions have been filed under Canada's new divorce laws which came into effect July 1, and which extend the grounds for divorce.

Minister on Encyclopedia:

No Apologies Coming

Education Minister Donald Brothers said Wednesday he had no apologies to make after an NDP spokesman charged the minister had endorsed the commercial promotion of an encyclopedia now being sold in B.C. supermarkets.

The minister said in an interview he endorsed encyclopedias in general, rather than any one encyclopedia, in his statement. He added: "I'd do it again. If you read my statement, you'll see that it is so."

He was commenting on the earlier statement by Mrs. Eileen Dailly, NDP member of the legislature for Burnaby North, who said she was shocked by the minister's endorsement and claimed she expected him next to be selling books door to door.

VERY HAPPY

Mr. Brothers replied: "Mrs. Dailly can find nothing worse than that to say about me. I'll be very happy."

Opposition Leader Robert Storch said Wednesday the minister was ill-advised to place his statement in the brochure which is intended to attract customers for supermarkets by offering a low-cost encyclopedia.

The action taken by Mr. Brothers, the NDP leader said, showed a total lack of leadership and made it more difficult for the education department to require that local school boards keep commercialism out of schools.

Brothers

Nearby, a spokesman for the distributors of the encyclopedia said in Vancouver Mr. Brothers had simply been offered an opportunity to make a general statement about education in B.C.

Ralph Daly of J. Walter Thompson advertising agency said this was the only arrangement made with the minister. Mr. Brothers was told his statement would be printed along with his picture in the brochure going into 325,000 households throughout the province and "accepted the opportunity to obtain such exposure."

The encyclopedia is being sold in 19 sections, the first being free and the rest costing 99 cents each, in a total of 430 B.C. supermarkets. A binder will be sold for $1.95.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell appeared to back away Wednesday from his previous statement that Lower Mainland municipalities must adopt several essential services on a regional basis by 1971 at latest or face the threat of government intervention.

He was asked whether the government would employ compulsion if the municipalities did not follow the advice he offered before the deadline was reached.

"No," Mr. Campbell replied, "compulsion would not be necessary. The question of compulsion or an ultimatum contained in my statement Tuesday were interpretive words. We, that is the government, are not trying to say something shall be a function."

That would be quite out of line."

When it was suggested to the minister that his blunt assertion to print that Vancouver area municipalities would adopt several new functions by 1971 or 1971 did in fact amount to an ultimatum, Mr. Campbell replied:

FOUR DISTRICTS

"Well, that was my subjective opinion. The connotation is that the government can influence the judgment of the people of the Lower Mainland, as we already have on the matter of parks and hospitals."

(The Lower Mainland is divided into four regional districts which have parks and hospitals as functions. The hospital function is compulsory, by act of the legislature which also introduced a new formula which increased the provincial share of capital costs, and the province contributes toward the cost of regional park acquisition.)

Mr. Campbell suggested in a pamphlet published Tuesday that additional functions which must be added by the 1970s included regional housing, transportation, waste disposal and possibly policing.

The minister added that with the federal government expected to begin shortly on programs of aid to local government in purchase of transportation corridors and open spaces in metropolitan areas, the existence of regional districts would mean the money was well spent.

Garden Notes

Don't Miss the Show

By M. V. CHESNUT

Whenever I attend a flower show, I always make a point of taking along a notebook and pencil, so I can jot down the names of new and interesting plants I would like to grow in my own garden. This habit got me into trouble on one occasion. I had spotted a particularly attractive plant and was busy with my scribbling when I was accosted by an irate exhibitor.

Evidently he figured he should have been awarded a prize for his flowers, and mistaking me for one of the show officials — probably because of the notebook — he was all for teaching me the error of my ways with a couple of left hooks and a cross to the jaw.

Since that time, I have refused all invitations to act as a judge at even the smallest village show; the occupational hazards are altogether too great!

Speaking of flower shows, the biggest horticultural event of the season is coming up on Friday and Saturday of this week.

This is the Annual Fall Show of the Victoria Horticultural Society, staged in the Victoria Curling Club, 1862 Quadra Street. Doors are open from 2 to 10 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Saturday. Admission is 50 cents and children accompanied by adults get in free.

We have a lot of good flower shows in Victoria, starting with the big Alpine show in the spring, the Annual Summer Show in mid-June, the Gladiolus and Dahlia Show and so on, each with its own character and flavor.

I must say, though, that I have a special fondness for the Fall Show, for this is the only one in which fruit and vegetables are exhibited in quantity.

You can't help realizing that it is truly a land of abundance when you see those mountains of perfectly grown onions and turnips, peaches and plums, berries and corn. The show even has a different small exhibit from that of the purely floral exhibitions.

As in all the flower shows these days, there is increasing emphasis on artistic floral arrangements, and the theme this year is the Home Beautiful. Exhibitors are invited to submit floral designs suggesting Victorian Mansions, Haciendas, Little Grass Shacks, Split Levels and the like. A number of these competitions is open to children only.

If you like to "tag" a flower show as I do, browsing around leisurely with pencil and notebook, I suggest you get there either early Friday afternoon or soon after opening time Sunday morning, as the grounds are usually not as dense at these times.

It isn't a bad idea to pay a return visit Saturday evening, for they usually offer a lot of plants and cut flowers at the end of the show, and usually there are some pretty good bargains to be picked up.

Several regional flower shows are scheduled for this month. The Strawberry Vale show is on Saturday, Sept. 14, the Esquimalt Fall Flower Show in Jubilee Hall on Sept. 20 and the Salt Spring Island Garden Club Show also on Sept. 20.

ART BUCHWALD Deplores Bra-Burners

Dissent Goes Too Far

WASHINGTON — In the wild "age of dissent" we're living in, there should be no surprises. But I was flabbergasted last weekend to read that about 100 women had picketed the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City against "indignous beauty standards that had enslaved the American woman."

Carrying signs deploring the "degrading, mindless boob-girlie system," the pickets also set up ashtrays in which they threw girlish lipstick, hair curlers, false eyelashes and wigs.

The final and most tragic part of the protest took place when several of the women publicly burned their brassieres.

As one who has always been on the side of protesters, I regret to say that I believe this demonstration in Atlantic City had gone too far. It is one thing to protest against a system or an institution, but it is another to take the law into your own hands and burn your bra.

By demanding that women do away with all beauty aids, including false eyelashes, wigs, hair pins, girdles and the like, so they will be on an equal footing with men, these well-meaning but misguided females were trying to destroy everything America holds dear.

It is a known fact that the American woman needs all the help she can get. For years now hundreds of thousands of scientists, and billions of dollars in research have gone into new methods of making the American female the most attractive, the most seductive, the most irresistible woman in the world.

Where nature failed, American know-how succeeded, and thanks to scientific ingenuity, it is now impossible for anyone to know where God leaves off and Maidenform takes over.

These well meaning pickets believe that by doing away with all the beauty "hard-ware" that is so necessary to the American woman, they will gain freedom and sexual independence.

The opposite of course, is true. The American male is so intent on getting ahead in the U.S. economic society that despite all the aids a woman now uses, he hardly pays any attention to her.

If the average American female gave up all her beauty products she would look like Tiny Tim, and there would be no reason for the American male to have anything to do with her at all.

The protesters think they're bringing about a revolution by discarding all feminine make-up, but actually they're turning back the clock to pre-civilization days when men and women did look and smell alike.

In those days, if we're to believe the cave dwelling drawings, men did nothing but clash women over the head.

It was only after the women started rubbing raw petals on themselves, and putting dust on their cheeks and red clay in their hair, that the men stopped hitting them around.

As we saw in Chicago, there are still many men who would like to clash women over the head. If they're given the slightest excuse, and there is no better excuse for hitting a woman than the fact that she looks just like a man.

If the women in Atlantic City wanted to picket the Miss America Beauty pageant because it is lily white, that is one thing, and if they wanted to picket because it is a bier, that is also a legitimate excuse.

But when they start asking young American women to burn their brassieres and throw away their false eyelashes, then we say dissent in the United States has gone too far.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Finch to Wed Again

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Peter Finch is on the verge of marriage with Jamaican beauty, 26-year-old Eleana Barrett. The third time for the 50-year-old actor, they plan an immediate family, "which," says the frank Finch, "is the only reason we are getting married. Neither of us believes in marriage." Fortunately, children do.

When Senape Wayne Morse played a bit role in Paramount's "Paint Your Wagon, 36-year-old Bob Packwood, the Republican who is running against the Democrat in November, demanded equal time. I won't bet on it. Bush writer-producer-lyricist Alan Jay Lerner and director Josh Logan are devout Democrats.

Israel actor Topol, who stars in Peter Hall's production of Don Quixote, cables that he will be the only Sancho Panza to speak with a Yiddish accent. He is currently in Spain starring in A Talent for Loving," with Richard Widmark.

Jean Dalmory, director of New York's City Centre, and what a job she always does, is producing the first New York revival of Carnival, for Christmas. It would be great to see Anna Maria Alberghetti in her original role. ... See Richard Harris made such a success of his record album. Lee Marvin has an urge to do likewise. He is conferring with composer Jim Webb on the songs concerning American history.

Lana Turner and her many-times reconciled husband Bob Eaton are going into the business, to be called Lana's—with a Mexican motif. Lana loves Acapulco, which she visits at least twice a year. She used to have a home there. Probably still does. She can afford it—and her various marriages. Ross Hunter made her a millionaire on her 50-50 split of Imitation of Life.

The November issue of Pace reveals the current frenzy of young filmmakers. Everyone who can carry a camera is making movies. It's a fascinating issue which major studio executives should read ... there will be another look on Clark Gable in the fall. Can there be anything new to reveal?

It doesn't always pay to start at the top. Seventeen-year-old Olivia Hussey, who starred as Juliet for Franco Zeffirelli when she was 16, has not made a movie since. "She would like to work, especially as she received good reviews.

When Sandy Dennis returns from filming The Milkmaid in London, she will become an active member of Equity. "When I come back I want to be involved with everything," Sandy says. "I never went to Equity as I did not always agree with the decisions. Now I'll go to the meetings and have a voice in what goes on." It's the only way.

The Private Domain

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Vulgarity is that act which belongs to our private world, but which is performed publicly.

There are many things we should be able to take for granted when we are dealing with mature people — things we cannot take for granted with children. A child has to be taught what is right about an act and what's wrong with it.

But he has to be taught more: the same act may be right when done at home and wrong when done outside.

It takes him a long time to understand this, but when he begins to learn how to differentiate between the private and the public realms of his life, he is well on his way to maturity.

The trouble with many of us, however, is that we have reverted to juvenile ways of living. We not only talk and dress childishly, we also act in ways that are less than adult. We do the right thing in the wrong way, much too often. That, by the way, is vulgarity.

So much that once believed to private individuals is now part of communal living. Public relations have taken over where private relations once held sway.

In respect of human welfare, it is proper for a government, state or community to be concerned with the problems of the weak, the infirm, the oppressed and the distressed.

Yet we must not make the error of transferring what properly belongs to the privacy of our emotional or spiritual lives into the public domain.

Consider our homes. There was a time when parents were teachers and not merely absentee feudal chieftains.

Nowadays, even the art of cooking is taken over by the school and courses in "home economics" absorb mothers from what could be a beautifully intimate relationship with their daughters.

Some of the most valuable hours used to be spent at home where parents were busy teaching their children. Even so mundane a thing as a mother teaching her daughter how to prepare a meal in her own way, had hundreds of fringe benefits.

A lot of things can be taught while you are waiting for the cake to rise — the familiarity of joint association creates a very special atmosphere — very important relationship in love and in life.

In so many ways our homes have become merely referral agencies. We are busy substituting our lives to other agents to do the job that properly should be our own. So many things which once were the pride and joy of parental obligation are now farmed out to others.

Home life has become one large never-ending labor-saving device so much so that the significant labors of parenthood are often traded away before they have even been used effectively.

But doing things together, even the little things, often become unforgettable moments, the ones we love to remember and cherish.

It is in this realm of privacy that character is often built, more strongly and more securely than by listening to lectures or having someone tell us about life from the pulpit or in the classroom.

The doing, the sharing, the living — all these being to each of us and no public act can make up for the lack of these private associations.

Transplant View Changed

LOS ANGELES — Stanford University's Dr. Norman Shumway, who has performed five heart transplants, says he would not have operated on his first two patients had he possessed present medical knowledge.

He said the two men, who died several days after their operations, would have been rejected as unsuitable. Shumway said the criteria for recipients has changed through experience — it used to be based on cardiac trouble without regard to other dependent organs, but now these organs must not be damaged irreparably or irreversibly.

Trudeau, presented the first copy of the book to Trudeau. It is entitled Trudeau, a Man for Tomorrow.

NAPLES — Count Demetrio Salazar, who helped 3,000 Americans and British escape from Italian prison camps during the Second World War, died at 82.

OTTAWA — Col. T. R. McCoy, 50, of Hamilton, was promoted to brigadier-general and appointed senior military adviser to the military component of the Canadian delegation in Vietnam. He has been deputy adviser.

DETROIT — Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., was offered and declined appointment as a U.S. delegate to the UN General Assembly, a spokesman said.

Champagne Bash Real Raveup In Milady's Tub

LONDON (CP) — A bunch of boys and girls were whooping it up in Lady Carolyn Townsend's apartment near Buckingham Palace and Wednesday they were in court explaining how they came to be drinking champagne in her bath.

Cheryl Emmett, 21, domestic help who threw the party while Lady Carolyn was away for the weekend, told police it was a "right old raveup." The prosecution preferred the term "a long, wild, drunken and somewhat squalid party."

Cheryl and seven men and three girls aged between 18 and 24 who had come to London to take part in a Trafalgar Square demonstration were charged with theft in connection with the party.

During it, 475 (about $195) worth of liquor was consumed and various articles stolen including four watches.

One reveler drank a bottle of champagne in Lady Carolyn's bath. The unruly guests paraded round in her dresses and slept in all five bedrooms.

Lady Carolyn, 27, daughter of the landowning Marquess of Townshend, returned home to find the place turned upside down. Cheryl Emmett had left a note of apology and vanished. The case continues.

Just a Monument, No But to Paris, Yes

PARIS (AP) — Maurice Chevalier is 80 today, and still singing Thank Heaven for Little Girls.

White-haired, straight and solid as an oak, the entertainer has just completed a song-and-dance swing through Central and South America and Canada.

Chevalier

They're putting in the brightest lights and refurbishing the Lido night club for the birthday party—which promises to be the most dazzling affair of the current season.

"Ten years ago they celebrated my 70th birthday with an enormous cake," he said.

"I suppose this year it will be bigger yet. And when I think of what it will be like in 10 years—but let's not anticipate."

"I feel I'm a little like the Eiffel Tower—always there. You know that she and I are the same age?"

A reporter asked: "How does it feel to become a monument—like the Eiffel Tower?"

"Just a monument, that would be annoying. But a monument of Paris. I'll tell you, that's rather gay. You can see a lot of the world go by."

Chevalier has seen the world go by since shortly after he was born to poor parents in suburban Paris in 1888.

Rescuer takes shoe from Mediterranean

French Crash Takes 95 Lives

Message Before Disaster: There's Still Fire Aboard

NICE (AP) — A flaming Air France plane crashed into the Mediterranean Sea Wednesday, killing all 95 persons aboard. The airline said the dead included Gen. Rene Cogny, who commanded French troops in North Vietnam at the time Dien Bien Phu fell.

Helicopters and rescue boats began the grim job of collecting charred and mangled bodies at the crash scene, 12 miles off Cap d'Antibes on the French Riviera.

The Caravelle jet, recently put into service, was on a flight from Ajaccio, Corsica, to Nice. It carried a crew of six and 89 passengers, said to include 13 children.

Parents awaiting the children's arrival at Nice Airport wept when a loudspeaker announced an "indefinite delay" and then broke news of the disaster.

Shortly before the crash the pilot messaged: "Fire aboard."

Then he again shouted: "There is still fire aboard. We..." Residents along the Riviera reported seeing a ball of fire and a huge column of smoke. The first helicopter to arrive on the crash scene said the tail of the plane was still sticking out of the water and wreckage was scattered over the area of 500 square yards.

Authorities theorized the plane exploded on contact with the water.

Besides Cogny, the victims were not identified. The airline only had sketchy passenger lists with last names, the normal practice on internal flights. It was assumed many of the passengers were holiday-makers returning from Corsican resorts.

Cogny, 64, often vacationed on Corsica, the home of his late wife. He was named commander of the French ground forces in North Vietnam in May, 1953, during the French Indochina war. He watched the fall of the French base at Dien Bien Phu in 1954 under continued assaults of the Viet Minh led by Gen. Nguyen Vo Giap, now North Vietnamese defence minister.

The Dien Bien Phu disaster marked the end of major fighting and the war went to settlement at the Geneva conference. Cogny was placed on reserve status in 1964.

Donor's Identity Stirs Up African Storm

CAPE TOWN (CP) — Confusion continues to surround the identity of a Negro woman whose heart was used in South Africa's third heart transplant.

Dr. Jacobus Burger, medical superintendent of Groote Schuur Hospital, said Tuesday the identity of the woman is not known and it appears highly unlikely it will ever be known.

For this reason, he said, consent was not obtained from relatives prior to the transplant Sept. 7 at Groote Schuur Hospital.

PREGNANCY DENIED
However, Dr. B. M. Nel, head of the outpatients' department at the hospital, had said Monday the donor's name was known to the hospital. He did not identify her.

Dr. Burger and Dr. L. A. Munnik, government official in charge of hospital for Cape province, denied Tuesday the woman donor was pregnant when she entered hospital. Newspaper reports had said the woman bore a child before her heart was placed into the chest of Pieter Johannes Smith, 52, a white former policeman.

Dr. Burger and Dr. Munnik declined Wednesday to make further statements.

Dr. Burger denied reports the donor was Mrs. Mambusha Daushe or Dawutsa, 35. He said she is alive and well in Groote Schuur Hospital.

PROGRESS MADE
Smith was reported today to be making "excellent progress."

In an editorial, the Cape Times calls for full examination of procedures followed in the Smith transplant and formulation of regulations for future transplants.

"With the best will in the world, it is impossible to shrug off lively disquiet over the confusion about the donor," the paper says.

"We understand and to a great extent sympathize with the point made by Prof. Barnard a day or two ago that they are now keeping the identity of donors confidential because of world criticism that too much publicity was given to them in the first two transplants."

DETECTIVE WORK
"We grant that reporters may have been overkeen in their own detective work. But the fact remains that Smith... is living with a heart from someone unknown, an African woman who died in tragic circumstances, apparently alone and friendless, with relatives far away."

"There is no doubt whatever that the enemies of South Africa will gleefully seize upon this uncertainty and make as much use of it as they can to arouse more suspicion."

Vancouver Festival Far in Red

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Festival Society Tuesday reported a deficit of $236,587 for 1967 and 1968—about $56,000 more than had been expected.

A report to city council, tabled two weeks for study, showed the society budgeted for 1968 revenue of $429,547 and received only $254,033. Potential ticket revenue for all shows was $556,038.

The biggest bomb was the show And Now, Noel Coward, with ticket sales of only $20,677. The society had budgeted for revenue of $72,714 from a potential take of $108,528.

Administration costs were almost $5,000 below the budget of $70,000—but attendance was the lowest yet at 87,307, only 51.7 per cent of the capacity offered.

Canada Nears 21,000,000 Mark

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 1967-68 period in all provinces, population July 1 was 20,772,000. Ontario recorded the largest up 1.6 per cent in the past 12 months, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimated Wednesday.

The population July 1, 1967, was 20,441,000 after an increase of 1.9 per cent in the previous year. Counts were higher for the

The new population clock at DRS headquarters, geared to the rates of birth, immigration, emigration and death that prevailed on July 1, had clicked over to register 20,839,152 Canadians by mid-afternoon Wednesday.

The DFS population estimates by province for July 1, with comparable totals for July 1 1967 bracketed:

Alberta 1,529,000 (1,493,000); British Columbia 2,010,000 (1,953,000); Yukon 15,000 (15,000); Northwest Territories 31,000 (29,000); Nova Scotia 760,000 (755,000); New Brunswick 625,000 (621,000); Quebec 5,930,000 (5,873,000); Ontario 7,321,000 (7,167,000); Manitoba 32,000 (32,000); Saskatchewan 32,000 (32,000); Prince Edward Island 110,000 (109,000).

All Indications

Gold River Out Today

GOLD RIVER—It seemed unlikely Wednesday night that Gold River's ultra-modern pulp mill would resume operations today.

The mill was closed Wednesday by what the union termed a lock-out and the Tahsis Co. said was an illegal strike.

More than 300 employees are involved. The dispute began late Tuesday afternoon when a key part of the bleaching operation broke down near the end of the shift.

Millwrights had refused to repair the broken stock pump involved by working overtime. Charles Wright, director of industrial relations for the company, said in Vancouver Wednesday night.

He said the job would have taken them from four to six hours.

Orville Braaten, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, said in Vancouver Wednesday "the men showed up for work this morning but were not allowed in the mill."

Mr. Wright denied this Wednesday night.

A company statement was posted on the gate Wednesday morning saying it was impossible to operate the mill and it would only be re-opened when management was assured employees were prepared to perform necessary work.

"No, we've had no discussion with them," Mr. Wright said from Vancouver Wednesday night.

"You don't negotiate in the face of an illegal work stoppage."

"We ran the plant as long as we could without the pump, but when the tanks filled up we had to stop."

"That's how it stands until the men return," he said.

Company officials read the following statement to workers Tuesday, Mr. Braaten said:

"You have to realize that every one of you could be fined for the first refusal (to work overtime) and any refusal thereafter could result in severe disciplinary action and dismissal."

Mr. Braaten said, "We've always contended that overtime is a voluntary thing. You can't compel a man to work more than eight hours a day these days."

Ladysmith Mill Back at Work

LADYSMITH — A two-day wildcat strike by 80 employees at Ladysmith Forest Products Ltd. sawmill here ended at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The afternoon shift of 40 men returned to work, and this morning's crew is also expected to report for duty.

"A membership meeting will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow," Duncan IWA vice-president Hugh Robinson said Wednesday night.

He said a meeting was scheduled in Vancouver today between Forest Industrial Relations, the IWA and Ladysmith Forest Products.

The employees walked off the job Tuesday morning objecting to the hiring of an outsider to run a machine. The men insisted the machine operator should have been chosen from their ranks according to the seniority scale.

Vandals At Work

Road leading up to exceptional view of Burgoyne Valley on Salt Spring Island is closed after vandals tore down guard rail at edge of steep drop. Railing is at top of Maxwell

Mountain, in Maxwell Park. Officials decided it was too risky to allow motorists and visitors in, so entrance was closed until repairs are made.— (Agnes Flett)

Legislation Board's Bid

NANAIMO—The school board has decided to send a late resolution to the B.C. School Trustees Association convention, to be held next week in Vancouver, asking them to press for provincial legislation to make Indians owner-electors (in name only) so that Indians could hold school board office.

As school trustee Gordon McGillivray of Cedar said, "We have integrated the Indian pupils into our system, but not the parents."

He said the school board and the entire community must become more involved in the destiny of all children, including Indian children. In order to do this, Indians must be allowed to hold office on the boards, he said.

Indians are at present tenant electors, which enables them to vote but not hold office. Mr. McGillivray's proposal to the BCSTA would go one step further.

The resolution would affect all Indians in British Columbia.

School district 68 (Nanaimo) encompasses four Indian reserves under one band — the Nanaimo Indian band.

Band manager Mrs. Pearl Pointe said Wednesday night following the school board's decision, "It's wonderful, super, terrific. I like it because we've been asking for representation for quite a long time now."

Housing Costs Topic of IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three resolutions linked to housing costs were approved at the Western Canadian convention of the International Woodworkers of America Wednesday.

One asked the British Columbia Federation of Labor to take steps to promote the creation of a department of housing and urban affairs, establish rent review boards, lower interest, subsidized mortgage rates and low-cost and subsidized housing developments.

A second resolution urged the abolition of the 11 per cent sales tax on building materials and the third asked provincial and municipal governments to implement regulations controlling land values and activities of land speculators.

Loffmark Refuses Comment on Camp

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark refused Wednesday to comment on a report that he gave permission to operators of a camp for emotionally disturbed children to ignore criticism of health board officials.

But, he added, the operators of the camp on Salt Spring Island "would be prudent" to comply with requirements of Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

Camp director Ivo Verbeek was quoted as claiming Mr. Loffmark gave him and other officials of Brown Camps Ltd. verbal permission to continue to operate the camp in the way they had been doing.

Search Stopped

GOLD RIVER—A four-day dragging operation for the pilot of a light aircraft was called off Tuesday. Police said naval divers participated in the operation in Mucialat Lake, but were unable to recover the body of Brian Sylvester, 33, of Richmond, formerly Victoria.

Campaign Tackles Red Menace

From CP

The right wing of American politics took a hard line on communism Wednesday as the U.S. presidential election campaign entered full stride.

Richard Nixon, Republican candidate for election as president Nov. 5, issued a statement in Charlotte, N.C., saying the Senate ratification of the treaty to control the spread of nuclear weapons "should be postponed because of the invasion of Czechoslovakia."

George Wallace, conservative third-party candidate for president, received an ovation from the national convention of the American Legion in New Orleans when he said, among other things, that the U.S. should seek a military victory in Vietnam should the Paris peace talks fail.

Spoto Agnew, Republican vice-presidential candidate, said in Annapolis, Md., that the communist threat is growing in the U.S. He added that "I'm not trying to raise a big communist scare."

Meanwhile, Robert Humphrey, Democratic presidential candidate, received a polite reception from the American Legion convention when he said he would put the resources of the federal government, "for the first time on a major scale, behind our local police force."

He warned against political attacks on the courts, laws and law enforcement officials. He said such attacks, made by Wallace and Nixon in the past, only encourage disrespect for the law.

Wallace, speaking three hours before Humphrey, also touched on the critical law-and-order theme of the election, denouncing rioters and looters as "trash."

He said if peace talks fail "we have only one recourse—that is to rely on the joint chiefs of staff, and if they believe we can win the war militarily, then I'd like to see us win it with conventional weapons and bring our boys home."

Red Cross:

Biafran Relief Possible

LAGOS (Reuters) — A Red Cross spokesman said Wednesday it is well equipped to distribute relief supplies to starving civilians in breakaway Biafra under proposals by the Nigerian federal government.

The government announced Tuesday it will implement unilaterally a five-point program to move relief to Biafra following an impasse at peace talks in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

The plan includes a direct airlift of 3,500 tons of supplies from the island of Fernando Poo to Ubi Biafra airstrip in Biafra.

CLOSE ENOUGH

The spokesman said Red Cross officials were not surprised by the federal proposals because "we have been close enough in touch with the government to know they are really preparing to do something."

Asked how relief could be airlifted to an airstrip held by the Biafrans, he replied: "I have no idea."

Meanwhile, August Lindt, chief representative of the International Red Cross in West Africa, was expected in Lagos Wednesday or today from Fernando Poo.

Canadian Pilots Invited

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian pilots willing to fly mercy missions of food and medical supplies to beleaguered Biafra and Nigeria were asked Wednesday to notify Canadian Red Cross headquarters in Toronto or provincial offices.

Flights to the secessionist eastern region of Biafra have been suspended under threat by federal Nigerian forces to shoot at planes trying to run the air blockade of the shrinking Biafran territory.

But a Red Cross spokesman said that efforts to be used in Biafra will be improved with radar, paved runways and approach lights.

The Red Cross announced last week at its international headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, that it would begin mercy flights despite Nigerian threats. But the advancing Nigerian army over-ran potential landing areas, and the flights were cancelled.

Pilots sought are those qualified to fly DC-4, DC-7 and C-47 aircraft.

Nixon's statement said that, although he was concerned over some provisions of the treaty, he had endorsed it in advance of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"I hope that it can be universally adopted," he said.

But the invasion "has seriously damaged the prospects for early ratification of the treaty," Humphrey was quoted as saying. Humphrey was caught in a campaign flap over troop withdrawal from Vietnam.

Humphrey predicted Monday there would be withdrawals of U.S. forces in Vietnam starting late this year or early in 1969.

But President Johnson said Tuesday this was something no one could predict, in what was taken as implied criticism.

In a question-and-answer session with a Houston audience Tuesday night, Humphrey was asked if Johnson had not "contradicted" him.

Humphrey, after demanding that his aides produce a newspaper, flourished it at the audience, saying: "It verifies what I said."

The story reported the imminent return of a marine regiment, the first of the war.

The second paragraph of the signed to Vietnam on temporary newspaper story, however, said duty and its return was not part of a general withdrawal.

Smith's Party Loses Three

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Lord Graham, minister of external affairs and defence in Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith's cabinet, resigned Wednesday following a bitter party clash over the country's future constitution.

In a letter of resignation from the white-minority government quoted in an official statement here, Graham, 61, told Smith: "I have become increasingly aware that in a number of matters our thinking is not as one."

TWO CHAIRMEN

The rebellion against Smith's policies continued Wednesday night with the resignation of two branch chairmen of the ruling Rhodesian Front party in Gaborone "as a matter of principle."

The opposition to Smith's policies from far-right critics intensified four days ago at a congress of the Rhodesian Front.

Smith's proposed constitution for Rhodesia, which would have separate provincial assemblies for black Africans and whites, did not go far enough for many and there were reports of large-scale defections.

ONLY 11 VOTES

Only 11 votes saved Smith from defeat at the hands of rebellious members voting against the constitutional plans drawn up by the 100-member party executive.

Graham is the seventh Duke of Montrose and senior duke of Scotland.

The far-rightists object to the part of the constitution draft which proposes an interim multi-racial senate and a lower house.

CLOSE SHAVE

They believe this is dangerously close to being a basis on which talks could be resumed with Britain to settle the independence issue, with the likelihood of the separate assemblies never taking shape.

The Smith constitution provided for a National Assembly. Its members would be elected on the basis of payment of income tax. This virtually would exclude black Africans as only a fractional minority of them earn enough to pay taxes.

NDP Pushing Mainland Link

Strait Liquid Tariff Wall for Island Residents

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

It will take a land link with the mainland to bring the people of Vancouver Island into the main stream of events in British Columbia, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said Wednesday.

Until a bridge-causeway or tunnel link is built — perhaps at a cost of more than $200,000,000 — Island residents will continue at a severe economic disadvantage, raged as they are with a "tariff wall," he said.

Ferry services offer only an "incomplete answer," Mr. Strachan said. "Right now Vancouver Island has a tariff wall around it because you have to pay a fee to get goods or people off and onto the Island.

"As long as this exists, Vancouver Island will never compete for development on equal terms with the rest of British Columbia."

He was asked at a press conference here whether he supported the plank in the platform of T. C. Douglas, who is seeking re-election in Nanaimo-Cowichan — The Islands when a federal bye-election is held there, calling for a federal study of a causeway to the mainland.

"Mr. Douglas is trying to make Vancouver Island a part of Canada," replied Mr. Strachan. "Construction of a toll-free link with the mainland would allow the people of the Island to participate in the mainstream of events in B.C."

Mr. Strachan, who lives near Nanaimo, said people who live on the Island now cannot travel conveniently to Vancouver to attend an opera, play or ballet, and youngsters cannot participate fully in sports activities.

Mr. Douglas was only asking that Ottawa show the same consideration to B.C. as it had to other parts of Canada, Mr. Strachan said.

He noted that the federal government had already built the Canso Causeway connecting Cape Breton Island to Nova Scotia.

There has already been a feasibility study of the link between the mainland and Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Strachan said it was one of the terms of B.C.'s entry into Confederation in 1871 that Vancouver Island would be linked to the mainland, and in 1873 Prime Minister Sir John A. Macdonald had an order-in-council approved which designated Victoria the terminus of the railway to the Pacific.

The promise was never kept, Mr. Strachan added, and now was the time to get the federal government to carry out a proper feasibility study.

Hijack suspect is taken from plane to police car on tarmac at Montreal airport

Air-Canada Drama

Talk Scrubs Hijack Try

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian authorities interrogated a six-foot Texan Wednesday night following his attempt to hijack an Air Canada Viscount aircraft and ordering the pilot at gunpoint to fly to Cuba.

The man, who identified himself as Charles Lavern Beasley, 22, of Dallas, was held for questioning after being convinced by RCMP and Air Canada officials he would be better off remaining in Canada than going to Cuba.

In Dallas, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said they sought a man named Beasley in connection with the Aug. 19 robbery of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank at Ladonia, Tex.

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Paul Hellyer Wednesday congratulated the crew of a hijacked Air Canada Viscount for the way they handled "an extremely difficult situation."

In a statement, Hellyer paid tribute to Capt. Ronald Hollett, First Officer Robert Bromley and stewardesses Beverly Atkinson and Christine Waud who were aboard the airliner forced by a gunman to land at Montreal.

Fund Vote Dies

Three resolutions linked to housing costs approved. Page 12.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two resolutions that sparked debate criticizing union leadership were introduced Wednesday at the western Canadian convention of the International Woodworkers of America.

One dealt with the union's strike fund — a major issue at the convention — and the other charged that woodworkers were being forced to contribute toward the re-election campaign of regional president Jack Moore and his officers.

LONG DEBATE

The strike fund resolution, which received approval after a long debate on procedural matters, called for a special convention to be held not later than Jan. 31, 1969, to deal with the fund's regulations and assessments.

Many of the 200 delegates wanted the strike fund to be dealt with at this convention.

Russia

In his third article of a series outlining a new foreign policy for the U.S., Arthur Goldberg sketches a program for dealing with the Soviet Union following the invasion of Czechoslovakia. His main points:

● Avoid the danger of a military confrontation.

● Diminish the economic burden imposed by an escalating arms race and the costs of sophisticated weaponry.

● Justifiable indignation against Moscow must not obscure the fact that the West's security will be served by approval of the non-proliferation treaty.

Today's article appears on Page 5.

French Visitor Scorched

'Distasteful, Secret Agents' Trudeau's Angry Outburst

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday accused France of sending "secret agents" to Canada in an "underhanded and surreptitious way" to agitate among French-language minorities.

Friend Asked Him

ST. PIERRE, Man. (CP)—French official Philippe Rossillon was making a personal visit "as a friend" when he spent five days in this French-Canadian community three weeks ago, his host said Wednesday.

Pharmacist Rene Mulaire said he met him in France and "invited him to visit us because he is very knowledgeable" about the problems faced by minority groups.

A Manitoba government statement said Rossillon was called to the office of Derek Bedson, clerk of the executive council.

Bedson told him that his visit could not be construed as unofficial and that he should in fact have approached the government.

The immediate object of his visit was the "distasteful" and "harmful" visit to Manitoba by Philippe Rossillon, a member of the staff of Premier Couve de Murville of France.

The French embassy said Rossillon, chief of France's committee for the defence and expansion of the French language, spent two weeks in Manitoba last month at the invitation of a French-language cultural group in that province.

OFF TO PARIS

An embassy spokesman said Rossillon was in Quebec City but he couldn't be located there and French officials said later they believed he was en route to Paris.

Trudeau, seemingly well prepared for a question on the subject at a news conference, said Rossillon had come to Canada without the knowledge or permission of the Canadian government despite the cultural agreement between the two countries.

Nothing could be more harmful to French-language minorities in English Canada than to have "secret agents of France"

Early October Talks Rusk's NATO Idea

Colonist-London Telegraph Service

BONN, West Germany. — U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk has suggested that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers meet in New York in early October to discuss the implications of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, informed sources here say.

Rusk's "sounding" message went to all NATO members.

Gun in Neck Interrupts Cocktail Time

TORONTO (CP)—Stewardess Christine Waud was mixing drinks in the galley of Air Canada flight 303 from Moncton and Saint John, N.B., Wednesday when a man poked a gun against her neck and said, "There's going to be a few changes around here."

Mrs. Waud said she spun around and the man told her: "We're not going to Toronto — we're going to Cuba."

Then he pressed the gun to the neck of the flight's other stewardess, Beverly Atkinson, grabbed her left arm and marched her toward the cabin.

"He was very, very nervous," Miss Atkinson said. "His eyes were kind of rolling around a little bit. But I'm sure he hadn't been drinking."

Mrs. Waud, 24, and Miss Atkinson, 26, were interviewed

when they arrived here from Montreal where the Toronto-bound flight stopped for refueling.

Mrs. Waud, whose husband works in the Air Canada freight department here, said the passengers remained calm throughout the attempted hijacking.

"Everyone was laughing and joking," said the Air Canada stewardess of 3½ years.

"He just said that he wanted to go to Cuba," Miss Atkinson said. "He didn't care if we had to stop every 10 minutes to get there."

Miss Atkinson said the man later ordered her out of the cabin and she returned only to take food to the pilots.

Some of the passengers were also interviewed when they arrived here on an earlier flight.

Voting Day Chosen For Centre

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Oct. 26 has been set as the voting date by the Cowichan Valley regional district for a $850,000 recreation development in the Duncan area.

Eligible to vote will be residents of the city of Duncan, the southern portion of the North Cowichan municipality and the unincorporated territories of Cobble Hill, Cowichan Bay and Cowichan Station-English Heights-Koksilah.

Regional directors representing these areas on the board, Jim Saunders, John Cannon, George Whittaker, George Braithwaite, A. K. McKinnon and Bruce Devitt voted unanimously in favor of the respective bylaw.

"We have the okay to go ahead with the promotion of Target 69."

Target 69 is the key word for the ambitious recreation development. Target 69 (the hoped-for opening date) will give this area a covered swimming pool and a community centre.

The total amount will be financed at eight per cent for a period of 20 years and the increase in the affected areas will be 4.32 mills.

Another money bylaw for the portion of the regional district between the Chemainus River and the Malahat for a new ambulance building will probably be held later this fall.

New Building Probed

Following George Sinden's explanation that the Kiwanis Ambulance Society would be prepared to look after a large civil defence vehicle which would necessitate a larger building, the directors concerned decided to have the committee study the new aspect and bring back a firm recommendation to the next board meeting.

Mr. Sinden is president of the ambulance society. The cost for the new building originally estimated at about $32,000 would go up by about $10,000 to accommodate the CD vehicle.

Mr. Sinden explained the oversized vehicle is very useful in emergencies but it would have to be returned to Victoria headquarters if no proper shelter is provided in the foreseeable future. Some of the directors expressed concern the additional cost may endanger passage of the bylaw, but A. K. McKinnon of Cowichan Bay said, "It is a small amount considering the large area involved."

After chairman George Whittaker of North Cowichan repeatedly remarked his municipality would be very much in favor of keeping the CD vehicle in the area, director David Lavrock of Shawnigan Lake interjected "We are asking for trouble and I think North Cowichan is the city in the commitment."

"They just want to stall."

Will Augment System

Vice-chairman John Cannon, burden would be more widely also of North Cowichan, spread. This year's five per cent increase in the school population will more than likely become a continuing trend, he said.

Board chairman Joseph Frumento, trustee Alistair MacDonald and trustee Dick Christmas voted against the project.

Mr. Frumento argued that the tax load increase by 1970 would be about 10 mills. He said the increase would include recreation capital expenditure, cost of a regional college plus general education.

He said, "I don't know if the people of the district realize the full implications."

Legality Questioned

"Passage of the recreation bylaw would add four mills to the rate, between two and three mills will be necessary if a regional college is approved and the four-mill increase of the past two years in the general education rate is likely to be repeated."

The board also questioned the legality of the regional college council's decision to open a temporary regional college in September at Nanaimo without a referendum.

Similar criticism was raised recently by Campbell River school board, trustees were told. The temporary Malaspina College would probably be housed in the old Nanaimo general hospital.

Cowichan's representative to the regional council, Trustee Christmas said: "I was concerned about the manner in which they went ahead and set this starting off date."

Trustee Ernest Goldard argued that because capital expenditure would be involved in the operation of the temporary college, people should have an opportunity to vote at a referendum.

Jack Whittam, regional college council chairman will be invited to explain the situation at the next board meeting.

Ucluelet Roads Get Surfacing

UCLUELET — Midvale Construction Co. crews have been paving streets in Ucluelet. They will next pave Kennedy Lake Road and Long Beach Road and then a number of Tofino roads will be hard-topped. The program also includes hard-surfacing part of the Alberni-Tofino road.

Silver Helps Cuba Regime

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Residents of Havana have donated $65,000 worth of silver to the Cuban government in a drive to provide the Communist regime with hard currency for world trade. Radio Havana said. The broadcast was the first report on a month-long national campaign.

Legislation
On Indians
Board's Bid

By HENRY BESSIER

NANAIMO—The school board has decided to send a late resolution to the B.C. School Trustees Association convention, to be held next week in Vancouver, asking them to press for provincial legislation to make Indians owner-electors (in name only) so that Indians could hold school board office.

As school trustee Gordon McGillivray of Cedar said, "We have integrated the Indian pupils into our system, but not the parents."

He said the school board and the entire community must become more involved in the destiny of all children, including Indian children. In order to do this, Indians must be allowed to hold office on the boards, he said.

ALLOWED TO VOTE

Indians are at present tenant electors, which enables them to vote but not hold office. Mr. McGillivray's proposal to the BCSTA would go one step further.

The resolution would affect all Indians in British Columbia. School district 68 (Nanaimo) encompasses four Indian reserves under one band—the Nanaimo Indian band.

Band manager Mrs. Pearl Pointe said Wednesday night following the school board's decision, "It's wonderful, super-terrible. I like it because we've been asking for representation for quite a long time now."

Mrs. Pointe said if Indians were elected to school boards, the boards would more readily see the problems affecting Indian children.

"At present there are many instances in which teachers or school boards cannot cope with our children because they don't live with them."

"At the moment, there isn't an Indian on the school board to speak for our children."

END RENTAL

In other school board business, the board decided to negotiate with B.C. Telephone Co. to purchase the ETV equipment being used in Nanaimo senior high school.

The cost would be $22,000 and the board said this would mean a saving of $11,500 over the next three years. The board pays a rental cost at present.

It was also pointed out that no additional equipment would be necessary.

Mortgage Subsidy

Housing Costs
Topic of IWA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three resolutions linked to housing costs were approved at the Western Canadian convention of the International Woodworkers of America Wednesday.

One asked the British Columbia Federation of Labor to take steps to promote the creation of a department of housing and urban affairs, establish rent review boards, lower interest, subsidized mortgage rates and low-cost and subsidized housing developments.

A second resolution urged the abolition of the 11 per cent sales tax on building materials and the third asked provincial and municipal governments to implement regulations controlling land values and activities of land speculators.

In other resolutions the convention:

- Urged abolition of Bills 33 and 43 in British Columbia, which call for a form of compulsory arbitration and makes unions liable to lawsuits "as they are aimed at destroying the unions' effectiveness to use the strike."

- Asked that dental care and prescription drugs be included in the union's medical care program;

- Urged the provincial government to properly clear reservoirs behind the Bennett, Mica and Libby dams in British Columbia.

A resolution charging that regional offices were using a union publication as a campaign instrument was introduced.

The resolution, introduced by the group headed by Vancouver local president Syd Thompson, which is seeking to replace president Jack Moore and his officers, was signed by Mr. Thompson, Murray Drew of Victoria, the loggers' local and Weldon Juhaville of the Duncan local.

It said a recent issue of the union's newspaper was used to promote the incumbent slate and lumbermen were forced to contribute to their campaign through a per capita tax used to publish the paper.

Loffmark Refuses
Comment on Camp

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark refused Wednesday to comment on a report that he gave permission to operators of a camp for emotionally disturbed children to ignore criticism of health board officials.

But, he added, the operators of the camp on Salt Spring Island, "would be prudent" to comply with requirements of Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

Second Time Around in Nanaimo

Property Owners Urge
New Bus Subsidy Poll

NANAIMO—Government permission will be sought by the Nanaimo regional district board for another poll in the Northfield-East Wellington area on the bus subsidy issue.

Two months ago, property owners in the district voted against a subsidy for the area to the Nanaimo Transit Ltd. The area is now expected to lose its bus service.

A petition containing 130 signatures from Northfield residents has been submitted to the regional district asking for another vote, in an attempt to save the service.

Government permission is needed to hold another vote within six months of the original ballot, according to regional district secretary-treasurer Dave Wilson.

The Nanaimo regional district board has voted to hire

Rawson and Wiles planning consultants limited of Vancouver to carry out the work. The firm is now working for the city of Nanaimo on urban renewal for this city.

According to a report presented to the board, only about 30 square miles of the district is now receiving some kind of planning and control of land, with the provincial government controlling about 45 square miles of this area.

Recreation commissions throughout the district will receive special scrutiny. The board said that control of unorganized areas should be under local jurisdiction, rather than government control.

Proper planning in the area will lay a firm foundation for future expansion of the district, according to board chairman Don Beaton.

Loss of Winter Works Cash
Puts Squeeze on Purchases

PORT ALBERT—Loss of winter works funds almost put a freeze on the purchase of two city vehicles which were recommended in a committee report to Port Albert city council Monday night.

Ald. Howard McLean and Ald. George Dunbar both urged that the purchase of an auxiliary rescue vehicle for the fire department and a vehicle for the building inspector be delayed until a report from the finance committee was received. It is to cover budget adjustments required because of the loss of winter work funds.

Ald. George McKnight said: "The work of the city doesn't come to a standstill because of the loss of winter work funds."

He previously felt that the auxiliary rescue vehicle could perhaps be postponed but recent events had taken the ambulance out of town and required the city's 15-year-old Pontiac emergency vehicle to be called on five times in two days. That had convinced him the purchase could not wait, he said.

"We are now providing a municipal service. We would be in a bad position if our new ambulance was away for 12 or 15 hours and the old Pontiac broke down and someone lost his life because of it."

"Since the money is already allotted for this, I believe the wisest course is to provide an emergency vehicle."

Tender for the vehicle was $6,000.

After it was pointed out that regardless of winter work, the building inspector has to be on the job—and on the road—every day, council approved purchase of the vehicle in a four to two decision.

All Indications

Gold River
Out Today

GOLD RIVER—It seemed unlikely Wednesday night that Gold River's ultra-modern pulp mill would resume operations today.

The mill was closed Wednesday by what the union termed a lock-out and the Tahsis Co. said was an illegal strike.

More than 200 employees are involved. The dispute began late Tuesday afternoon when a key part of the bleaching operation broke down near the end of the shift.

Millwrights had refused to repair the broken stock pump involved by working overtime. Charles Wright, director of industrial relations for the company, said in Vancouver Wednesday night.

He said the job would have taken them from four to six hours.

Orville Braaten, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, said in Vancouver Wednesday "the men showed up for work this morning but were not allowed in the mill."

Mr. Wright denied this Wednesday night.

A company statement was posted on the gate Wednesday morning saying it was impossible to operate the mill and it would only be re-opened when management was assured employees were prepared to perform necessary work.

"No, we've had no discussion with them," Mr. Wright said from Vancouver Wednesday night.

"You don't negotiate in the face of an illegal work stoppage."

"We ran the plant as long as we could without the pump, but when the tanks filled up we had to stop."

"That's how it stands until the men return," he said.

Company officials read the following statement to workers Tuesday, Mr. Braaten said:

"You have to realize that every one of you could be fired for the first refusal to work overtime and any refusal thereafter could result in severe disciplinary action and dismissal."

Mr. Braaten said, "We've always contended that overtime is a voluntary thing. You can't compel a man to work more than eight hours a day these days."

Meetings Today

Ladysmith Mill

LADYSMITH—A two-day wildcat strike by 80 employees at Ladysmith Forest Products Ltd. sawmill here ended at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The afternoon shift of 40 men returned to work, and this morning's crew is also expected to report for duty.

MEETINGS TODAY

"A membership meeting will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow," Duncan IWA vice-president Hugh Robinson said Wednesday night.

He said a meeting was scheduled in Vancouver today between Forest Industrial Relations, the IWA and Ladysmith Forest Products.

OUTSIDER HIRED

The employees walked off the job Tuesday morning objecting to the hiring of an outsider to run a machine. The men insisted the machine operator should have been chosen from their ranks according to the seniority scale.

Mill manager Joseph Frumetto and Doman Industries Ltd. president Herb Doman declined comment Wednesday on the incident.

Motorist Blamed
For Fatal Crash

NANAIMO—A coroner's jury in Nanaimo has ruled that David Bernard Thomas, age 28, of Coombs, was responsible for his own death in a car crash Aug. 16.

Mr. Thomas died following a head-on crash on the Island Highway north of Nanaimo, after his car collided with a southbound vehicle, driven by Alistair Miller of North Vancouver.

The vehicle in which Thomas was driving burst into flames following the crash. Thomas and two passengers in his car were dragged from the burning

Another Handicap

Licencing Rules Rile Fishermen

By DON COLLINS

Down at Fishermen's Wharf, where a man's home and business address may be the same small boat bobbing alongside a dock, there is an uneasy feeling about "the Establishment."

To the men who latter here when not pursuing the salmon for a living, "the Establishment" appears in many forms—the federal government, big business, big unionism, doctors, lawyers, and anyone else who may carry the tag of the "professional man."

On Monday, "the establishment" was Ottawa in the form of the federal fisheries department, and the fiercely independent men of the sea were not hesitant about criticizing the department's latest move—new licence regulations.

Most of those who spent the late afternoon painting or repairing boats, cooking spuds, or just standing around to engage in idle chat, spoke of the new regulations as another aid to sports fishermen and another handicap to themselves.

"Look, it's like this," said Gustav Broshell, who has been his own employer and crew in the salmon fishing business since 1933, "the establishment is just opening things up even wider to the American sports fishermen."

Others agreed that the removal of 1,000 boats from West Coast waters would probably aid big fishing companies and sports fishermen.

One was Joe Schaffer, who has been fishing B.C. waters since 1933.

"If you want to fish now on a commercial basis, you've got to sail 5 1/2 hours from here before you hit legal water," he said as he worked on his boat, Toller.

"It used to be that a man could go out in the morning and come back at night. But not now—not since they gave the nearby waters to the big sports fishermen."

Target of the small, independent fishermen is the set of licence regulations announced Friday by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis.

He said an immediate effect would be elimination of 1,000 boats that didn't record commercial salmon landings in 1967.

Gus Broshell is one of those whose boats would be eliminated under these regulations.

"I didn't fish in 1967 because I was sick," said the 67-year-old fisherman.

He said his only course of action was to take his case to an appeal board.

"But the government isn't interested in us. It's interested in the sports fishermen. Well, let me tell you this: What makes us mad is that the American sports fishermen come up here and don't spend a cent in Victoria.

"They come with their boats already loaded with provisions. They don't have any commercial licences, but they have ways of selling their stuff on the sly, and a lot of them do."

Another regulation that doesn't sit well with Gus and some of the others is the dividing of commercial boats into A and B classifications. Those with more than $1,250 in commercial landings in 1967 will be in Class A. Those under, will be given B classification.

The 5,300 Class A boats in B.C. will have their licences renewed annually. Any boat to receive a new licence in the salmon fishery must be in Class A. The 1,500 B boats will also have their licences renewed each year, but cannot be replaced by new boats.

"This is bad, very bad," said Gus. "A man might have a good boat, a $30,000 boat, and he might just be in the wrong place at the wrong time and he may not get the $1,250 landing needed."

Smoke from Garbage Gone by New Year

Hex Plagues Mandoil While High and Dry

The ill-fated tanker Mandoil II made her presence and her bad luck streak known again Tuesday night, when another fire broke out in her battered and rusted hull in Esquimalt graving dock.

Esquimalt fire department called the government dockyard department for assistance in fighting the fire at about 6:45 p.m.

A spokesman at the drydock said the fire occurred in a small, forward equipment hold when a welder's torch threw a spark onto a tarred rope. No injuries were reported, and damage was negligible.

The Liberian tanker was involved in a collision at sea Feb. 28 with the Japanese freighter Sumahara Maru, while carrying 10,000,000 gallons of oil.

The gored tanker burned at sea, with a loss of 11 of her 43 crewmen.

Tugs attempting to tow the ship to port lost her once in gale-whipped waves, but eventually she was brought to Noctika Island. Liens had been placed against her for towing and salvage charges, and she was arrested by the Admiralty marshal of Vancouver Island.

Her bad luck streak continued, even when she was auctioned off at Portland for $33,000.

After discovering the liens against her, the original buyer would not go through the formality of the auction again.

At the second auction a Japanese firm, Mitsui Co., was the successful bidder for $127,500.

Monday the Mandoil was brought to Esquimalt for a patching job so she could be towed across the Pacific for scrapping in Taiwan.

Operators Ordered To Update Methods

All burning of garbage at dumps in Greater Victoria will stop at the end of this year.

Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health decided Tuesday to order the stoppage.

Dr. G. M. Whitbread, medical health officer, said that by making the order effective Dec. 31, the operators of the dumps and the municipalities would have time to negotiate new contracts.

From Jan. 1 next year, the dump operators will be required to compact garbage and cover it, pending the installation at some future time of modern burners.

Dr. Whitbread said some cell burners being introduced in other cities enabled garbage to be burned without the discharge of any smoke or odors.

He said compacting and covering of garbage would not only remove the smoke nuisance but will also aid in rat control.

MIXED REACTION
The health board's ruling was greeted with mixed reaction Tuesday night by municipal leaders.

Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant said, "This is not an unexpected move, and they've given us adequate time to work on the problem."

"The regional board has had the problem under consideration for some time," he said.

Prizewinner

Latin student Cathy Oliver, 2300 Cavendish, has won a $150 scholarship offered by the Classical Association of the Pacific States. A graduate of Oak Bay High, she will study classics at the University of Victoria. Robert Alan Oakley, 570 Falkland Road, has been awarded a $100 scholarship by the B.C. Association of Teachers of Classics. He attended University School and also will enrol at UVic this fall.

FULL CANS

"There will sure be a lot of full garbage cans around if that happens," he said.

Mr. Rant said the new ruling could be followed.

"It will cost the taxpayers a lot more money because we'll have to bring in loads of gravel to cover it."

He said that the health minister indicated the smoke pollution remedy would be applied gradually.

Mr. Rant said he did not consider the change gradual, "when now we've only got until the end of the year."

Breakers of Motel Code 'Must Be Disciplined'

Worried about the city's image as a tourist centre, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce will urge the industry to take disciplinary action against people who fleece visitors.

President William A. Armstrong said Tuesday.

"We spend a lot of money every year to bring these people here, and through the actions of a few greedy operators the whole investment could go down the drain," Mr. Armstrong said.

He added that the chamber's tourist group would look into charges of scalping and overcharging and make suggestions for policing action to the local branch of the B.C. Motels and Resorts Association.

Stan M. Becker, chairman of the Victoria Visitors Bureau, admitted recently that there had been a number of complaints of overcharging received at the Causeway information centre.

He said such operators were "pirates and scoundrels" and that it was time for provincial regulations which would require motel operators to post the prices of rooms and to conform to a code guaranteeing the patron a square deal.

Mr. Becker added, as did others who commented on the practice, that the flooring was done by a minority and was not general in the district.

"These same people have been doing it for years, and it is they who are giving the whole industry a black eye."

He said he thought a penalty should be devised which would be stronger than mere removal from a preferred list such as that of the British Columbia Automobile Association.

"I don't know just what should be done but it seems to me the motel operators have to find a solution for this problem," Mr. Armstrong said.

Veteran hotel operator Sam Lane was equally forceful in his condemnation of "pirates."

What they did, he said, was hold back a number of units until a late hour on a summer night. Then, when the pressure was on for accommodation all over town, they released them and charged all the traffic would bear.

NDP Pushing Mainland Link

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

It will take a land link with the mainland to bring the people of Vancouver Island into the main stream of events in British Columbia, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said Wednesday.

Until a bridge-causeway or tunnel link is built — perhaps at a cost of more than $200,000,000 — Island residents will continue at a severe economic disadvantage, argued as they are with a "tariff wall," he said.

Ferry services offer only an "incomplete answer," Mr. Strachan said. "Right now Vancouver Island has a tariff wall around it because you have to pay a fee to get goods or people off and onto the Island.

"As long as this exists, Vancouver Island will never compete for development on equal terms with the rest of British Columbia."

He was asked at a press conference here whether he supported the plank in the platform of T. C. Douglas, who is seeking re-election in Nanaimo-Cowichan — The Islands when a federal bye-election is held there, calling for a federal study of a causeway to the mainland.

"Mr. Douglas is trying to make Vancouver Island a part of Canada," replied Mr. Strachan. "Construction of a toll-free link with the mainland would allow the people of the Island to participate in the mainstream of events in B.C."

Mr. Strachan, who lives near Nanaimo, said people who live on the Island now cannot travel conveniently to Vancouver to attend an opera, play or ballet, and youngsters cannot participate fully in sports activities.

Mr. Douglas was only asking that Ottawa show the same consideration to B.C. as it had to other parts of Canada, Mr. Strachan said.

He noted that the federal government had already built the Canso Causeway connecting Cape Breton Island to Nova Scotia.

There has already been a feasibility study of the link between the mainland and Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Strachan said it was one of the terms of B.C.'s entry into Confederation in 1871 that Vancouver Island would be linked to the mainland, and in 1873 Prime Minister Sir John A. Macdonald had an order-in-council approved which designated Victoria the terminus of the railway to the Pacific.

The promise was never kept, Mr. Strachan added, and now was the time to get the federal government to carry out a proper feasibility study.

Air-Canada Drama

TALK ENDS HIJACK TRY

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian authorities interrogated a six-foot Texan Wednesday night following his attempt to hijack an Air Canada Viscount aircraft and ordering the pilot at gunpoint to fly to Cuba.

The man, who identified himself as Charles Lavern Beasley, 22, of Dallas, was held for questioning after being convinced by RCMP and Air Canada officials he would be better off remaining in Canada than going to Cuba.

In Dallas, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said they sought a man named Beasley in connection with the Aug. 19 robbery of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank at Ladonia, Tex.

FBI WARRANT

The FBI said they have a warrant for the arrest of a man named Beasley who was born in Rosser, Tex. on April 2, 1946—the same date and birth place given by the man in custody in Montreal.

Assistant Commissioner Raoul Carriere of the RCMP said Beasley agreed to surrender his weapon after about 15 or 20 minutes of persuasion which included a promise from Justice Minister John Turner that he would be assured of political asylum in Canada.

TORONTO-BOUND

Beasley was reported to have burst into the flight deck, a 22-calibre revolver in hand, shortly after the aircraft took off from Saint John, N.B., on a flight to Toronto.

With a stewardess in front of him, the gunman told the pilot: "We're flying to Cuba."

POLICE LATER

Initial questioning was conducted exclusively by immigration authorities at Montreal International Airport, where the plane made an unscheduled stop, but Air Canada and suburban Dorval police joined in the interrogation later Wednesday.

It was learned that Beasley—Carriere said RCMP had to take his word that that was his name—told immigration officials he was a member of the Black Power movement in the United States and that the Central Intelligence Agency was after him.

When the RCMP assistant commissioner arrived at the scene, the aircraft was ready to take off for Cuba after it dis-

Fund Vote Dies

Three resolutions linked to housing costs approved. Page 45.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two resolutions that sparked debate and criticism of union leadership were introduced Wednesday at the Western Canadian convention of the International Woodworkers of America.

One dealt with the union's strike fund—a major issue at the convention—and the other charged that woodworkers were being forced to contribute toward the re-election campaign of regional president Jack Moore and his officers.

LONG DEBATE

The strike fund resolution, which received approval after a long debate on procedural matters, called for a special convention to be held not later than Jan. 31, 1969, to deal with the fund's regulations and assessments.

Many of the 200 delegates wanted the strike fund to be dealt with at this convention.

In his third article of a series outlining a new foreign policy for the U.S., Arthur Goldberg sketches a program for dealing with the Soviet Union following the invasion of Czechoslovakia. His main points:

● Avoid the danger of a military confrontation.

● Dismiss the economic burden imposed by an escalating arms race and the costs of sophisticated weaponry.

● Justifiable indignation against Moscow must not obscure the fact that the West's security will be served by approval of the non-proliferation treaty.

'Distasteful, Secret Agents' Trudeau's Angry Outburst

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday accused France of sending "secret agents" to Canada in an "underhanded and surreptitious way" to agitate among French-language minorities.

Friend Asked Him

ST. PIERRE, Man. (CP)—French official Philippe Rossillon, chief of France's committee for the defence and expansion of the French language, spent two weeks in Manitoba last month at the invitation of a French-language cultural group in that province.

The immediate object of his visit was the "distasteful" and "harmful" visit to Manitoba by Philippe Rossillon, a member of the staff of Premier Couve de Murville of France.

The French embassy said Rossillon, chief of France's committee for the defence and expansion of the French language, spent two weeks in Manitoba last month at the invitation of a French-language cultural group in that province.

Nothing could be more harmful to French-language minorities in English Canada than to have "secret agents of France" around and the man told her: "We're not going to Toronto — we're going to Cuba."

BONN, West Germany, — U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk has suggested that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers meet in New York in early October to discuss the implications of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, informed sources here say.

Rusk's "sounding" message went to all NATO members.

Gun in Neck Interrupts Cocktail Time

TORONTO (CP)—Stewardess Christine Waud was mixing drinks in the galley of Air Canada flight 303 from Moncton and Saint John, N.B. Wednesday when a man poked a gun against her neck and said, "There's going to be a few changes around here."

Mrs. Waud said she spun around and the man told her: "We're not going to Toronto — we're going to Cuba."

Then he pressed the gun to the neck of the flight's other stewardess, Beverly Atkinson, grabbed her left arm and marched her toward the cabin.

"He was very, very nervous," Miss Atkinson said. "His eyes were kind of rolling around a little bit. But I'm sure he hadn't been drinking."

Mrs. Waud, 24, and Miss Atkinson, 26, were interviewed

when they arrived here from Montreal where the Toronto-bound flight stopped for refueling.

Mrs. Waud, whose husband works in the Air Canada freight department here, said the passengers remained calm throughout the attempted hijacking.

"Everyone was laughing and joking," said the Air Canada stewardess of 31a years.

"He just said that he wanted to go to Cuba," Miss Atkinson said. "He didn't care if we had to stop every 10 minutes to get there."

Miss Atkinson said the man later ordered her out of the cabin and she returned only to take food to the pilots.

Vehicle Station Tests Everyone's Mettle

By DON COLLINS

It's a place of utter confusion. It lacks uniformity and sometimes doesn't correctly interpret the safety standards. It is hitting Greater Victoria service stations with an unnecessary backlash of rejected automobiles.

All of this, however, is just one side of the picture presented Wednesday of the first provincially-operated motor vehicle testing station. The other side:

Its standards are first class, but unfortunately those of too many service stations are not. It is proof of "whole hearted" co-operation by the province in the matter of road safety and is proving more successful all the time.

Oddly enough, the vastly different views are being presented chiefly by the same group of men — the service station operators.

One of those on the attack is Roy Robertson, operator of the Town and Country Texaco Station at 3415 Douglas, who said "there seems to be a high degree of confusion."

Mr. Robertson, who said he had been in the business about 35 years, disagreed that there should be one set of headlight standards for sedans, station wagons and pickup trucks.

"This way, you put a man, six or seven kids and lot of luggage in a station wagon and his headlights are showing him nothing but the tops of telephone poles," he said.

As evidence of a lack of uniformity among the 18 inspectors at the testing station, he offered this example:

"One of my customers went through Lane 1 at the station and came back with two rejections. These were fixed and when he went back he went through Lane 2 and got three new rejections."

R. G. Whitlock, superintendent of inspection, said this seemed highly unlikely because it was not a policy to reject cars on point other than those for which they were rejected.

Of the uniformity lack claim, he said: "Well, look, you can't say every man is going to have the same answer. But these men are all experienced mechanics. They have standards by which they work, but there comes a time when they must use their own judgment."

One service station operator said customers had been rejected for having amber stop lights, even though the Motor Vehicle Act says this is legal.

Mr. Whitlock said this wasn't so. He said the only rejections of this nature had involved tailights, which must be red.

Other service station operators said good, late-model cars were being rejected for "picky" reasons that could barely be detected when re-examined.

Put George Argyle, operator of Esquimalt Service Ltd. and president of the B.C. Auto motive Dealers Association, supported the testing station.

"There were initial differences due to a lack of knowledge of standards," he said. "But this has been overcome and there haven't been as many rejections in the last month."

Early confusion led to a meeting of the testing station officials and service station operators.

Mr. Argyle said operators present left the meeting with the feeling "that there was nothing wrong with their (the testing station's) standards, but that we must bring our standards up."

He said his association had pressed for 12 years for the provincial station, which opened July 4 at McKenzie and Borden.

Mr. Whitlock said many service stations had lacked proper headlight testing equipment, but that much had been sold here in the last month.

He denied charges that motorists were rushed through if they brought their cars close to the 8 p.m. closing time, or that they were put to unduly lengthy examination earlier in the day.

Standards, he said, had been copied from the successful Vancouver-operated station that was established 30 years ago, and from top U.S. testing stations.

Average waiting time, he said, had been reduced to 20 minutes.

On Tuesday, 630 vehicles were tested, compared to the on-day high of 712. He said the rejection average at this early date was 38 per cent, compared to 27 per cent in Vancouver.

St. Louis Teachers

Aid for Students Parting Gesture

By BILL STAVDAL

When the Christian Brothers of Ireland closed St. Louis College last June and dispersed to new teaching jobs, they left a final gift to their students.

School Opens

Pupils Set Pace

The Victoria Free School will open Monday after beginning as an idea last month.

Three full-time teachers, 33 students and a reserve of part-time lecturers will launch the experiment in a church hall at 520 Niagara.

The teenage students, described by teacher David Cox as mostly dropouts from public high schools, will study, debate and relax as they please.

Teachers and students will be equal in everything but knowledge.

OWN SPEED

"The student will study what he wants to, at his own speed," said Mr. Cox of 1381 Clarke Road, who has just completed requirements for a bachelor's degree with an English major at the University of Victoria.

Mr. Cox said other teachers would be John Simpson, a graduate of the University of British Columbia, and Ezra Auerbach, an American undergraduate.

SYSTEM OPPOSED

Thomas Paul, a 1968 graduate of the University of Victoria will teach part-time, said Mr. Cox. "The free school project began in a series of August meetings by people opposed to the traditional school system."

Several similar schools have already sprung up in Vancouver and in eastern Canada.

Victoria Free School students will pay from $30 to $50 a month for tuition.

Voluntary Teachers Lauded

Seventy student teachers from the University of Victoria are performing two weeks' unpaid volunteer work in Greater Victoria and Saanich school districts.

Their pay is experience which they will put to use when classes begin at the university later this month.

The project, titled September Experience, was organized in co-operation with the university's faculty of education. Professor William Cross, assistant director of student teaching, coordinated the program.

JUNIOR HIGHS

Of the 70 students, 64 are in Greater Victoria schools. Several are in junior high schools, district superintendent Joseph Chell said Wednesday.

Six have been assigned to Beaver Lake Elementary in Saanich school district.

Beaver Lake principal James Chow added:

"We'd sure like to hang onto them."

December Sewer Target

Central Saanich hopes to be able to present a referendum on its $1,700,000 sewer plan to its ratepayers sometime in December, according to Mayor Gordon Lee.

"We're making December our target, but the vote will not necessarily be in December. It is our intention to try to have it resolved in council before December so we can present a referendum then," he said.

However, if no financial assistance is available from federal and provincial governments, he said, the bylaw would be further delayed.

Although sewer plans were completed this year, he said, the bylaw was held up mostly because of the difficulty of borrowing money at reasonable rates of interest.

Delay in the development of the municipality, especially in the Brentwood area, has resulted from the holdup in the plans, Mayor Lee said.

Traffic Diverted On Rose Monday

There will be a new jog in the road for motorists travelling south on Rose Street from 9.30 a.m. Monday.

Traffic will be diverted to the new east-side lanes of the street on the stretch between Hillside and Bay. The diversion will likely last about one month while the west side of the new highway is being built.

Bow, Propellers Bent on Warship

HMCS Saskatchewan presented a sorry sight both fore and aft as she was taken from the water Wednesday for repair of damage suffered when she hit an underwater object Sunday in Active Pass.

Official preliminary estimates set the damage at about $15,000 to the vessel's bow and propellers. A Canadian Forces spokesman said it was expected the destroyer escort would be back in service before the end of the month.

The bottom of the bow was bent over at right angles, and the propellers looked like wilted daisies

after the encounter with what was reported to have been a rock. Propeller damage indicated both screws were going astern when they hit.

Further tests will be required to determine whether the ship's drive shafts were knocked out of alignment.

A board of inquiry investigating the incident should complete its work next week, a spokesman said. Findings will be sent to senior officers of Maritime Command Pacific, and to Ottawa.

Cmdr. Norman S. Jackson has been in command of the Saskatchewan since July, 1967.

Second Petition Reflects Change By Taxpayers

By DON GAIN

A group of property-owners on McKenzie Avenue has decided in favor of storm drains, curbs, gutters and boulevard improvement and sidewalks after all.

A petition will be presented to Saanich municipality this morning requesting the resubmission of a local improvement project for McKenzie between Douglas and Quadra.

The project was abandoned in January, when 51 of 91 property owners on McKenzie and Simon signed a petition against it. This was not enough to defeat it, but the public works committee decided, in view of the petition, to drop it.

STORY DRAINS

In March, a local improvement was initiated for property owners in the area on McKenzie from just west of Quadra to just east of Century and part of Cedar Hill Cross Road, to build curbs, gutters, sidewalks and storm drains.

This morning's petition has signatures representing 28 properties. Peter Grootendorst, of 731 McKenzie said Wednesday night.

He and Robert Weicker of 739 McKenzie circulated the petition and will present it to the municipality.

RESUBMISSION

The petition requests the resubmission of the local improvement project for the construction of McKenzie between Douglas and Quadra.

The signatures, many of whom petitioned against the local improvement before, now say they want storm drains, curbs, gutters and boulevard improvement, with the promise of a concrete sidewalk on both sides of the road. They now agree to pay 50 cents a foot frontage each year for the next 20 years in order to get these improvements. Cost to them was estimated at $39,000 last fall.

Without the local improvement, they were in line for an asphalt road with open ditches, no sidewalks and no boulevard improvement.

Municipal engineer Neville Life welcomed the news of the forthcoming petition Wednesday night.

He said Saanich would be pleased to receive the request and that construction would proceed next year on a four-lane road "with the full treatment."

ALL TO BENEFIT

"It will complement what is already in and will be extremely satisfactory to the municipality at large as well as to the property-owners on the street."

Mr. Grootendorst said property-owners changed their minds because they favored sidewalks for children going to three nearby schools and for all residents of the area.

He also said if sewer connections were put in when the road was paved, it wouldn't have to be broken for sewers later on.

"This would lower our cost for sewers," he said.

Yates Parking Garage

Entrance Will Be Exit To Prevent Bottleneck

Down will be up and up will go down at the civic parking garage on Yates Street next week.

The turn-around in the garage will take place this weekend in preparation for the following weekend's conversion of Yates and Port Streets to one-way traffic routes.

City traffic engineer David Campbell said the conversion of Yates to a westbound traffic thoroughfare would make a bottleneck at the garage if the present entrance and exit were maintained.

To prevent a jam of cars, the present routing inside the garage is simply being reversed. From Monday morning, cars will enter on the west side and immediately turn left. They will leave by the old entrance.

Mr. Campbell said it had been decided that the planned conversion of Yates and Port to one-way streets early on Sunday Sept. 22 would not take place if it should rain.

Rain would make it impossible for city crews to obliterate the present lane markings and stripe in new ones.

But, weather permitting, the switch will start at 6 a.m. Mr. Campbell said he hoped complete one-way traffic flow on both streets would be in effect by 2 p.m. and that both roads would be fully signed and traffic lights changed.
